1 MILE RUN

As he passes a showcase in the hall, each W-Lite sees his image as it appears to those around him. Yet, in the reflection he can perceive what they cannot: the influence of classes, athletics and activities. Washington-Lee has made a definite impression upon him. His academic record illustrates an eternal search for knowledge. Club activities provided the opportunity to make firm and lasting friendships, as well as serve his community. Sports allowed him to improve his skills in various competitions and to learn the fundamental principles of good sportsmanship.

Glass allows only the external person to be seen, but reflection on the form brings about the examination of the inner person. Each Washington-Lee student can look within himself and feel satisfied with what he sees: reflections of a year of hope, participation and achievement.

Sherwood as they mix colors while experimenting with making original abstract designs, using their names as bases..

Art Enthusiasts Plan 'Home of Tomorrow'

Planning a house in the future? If so, consult the art department for ideas. In conjunction with the industrial arts department, the artists designed a home for tomorrow. In an architectural course taught to art classes, students planned the interior of the house.

Fulfilling the responsibility of decorating twenty-two areas around the school for Christmas, the art department planned early and spent several weeks before Christmas adorning the building with festive decorations. Judging the homeroom doors, the student council and art department chose winners in both secular and religious classes.

In April the department sponsored its annual Art Show, in which students participating in art classes exhibited their works. A variety of one-man exhibits given throughout the year in both the faculty dining room and the Arlington County Central Library evidenced the wide-ranging interests and versatility of the amateur artists.

Pencil in mouth, pallet in hand, senior Marsha Gunnell prepares to transmit her inspiration to an easel.

"Does this look all right here?" asks Sandy Coukouma, a student artist in Art IV, as she arranges a bulletin board.

Beginning her first attempt at still life painting, Dot Treganowan scales her picture and draws the rough outline.

Taking the inventory of the recently installed paperback bookrack, senior Charlene Alexander and her co-worker

Janice Wilder, also a senior, carefully check the list of publications to assure a complete stock of reading materials.

Business Classes Assume Modern Look

"Round and round the little ball goes, where it stops, nobody knows!" This remark did not come from a gambling casino, but from a typing class. The business department this year purchased fifteen IBM electric typewriters with ball selectors and acquired two modern adding machines.

To lessen the problems of overcrowded classrooms, the business department increased the number of teachers. The department also procured an additional set of typing textbooks.

Open for the fourth year in a row, the Student Savings Bank, offered students an opportunity to draw interest on their savings. Business students gained valuable experience, serving as tellers and School Store cashiers.

"Now take 22% of your total income," explains Mrs. Joann Levine as she instructs Roger Riddle on income tax.

Getting the practice necessary for a summer job, Diane Balough transcribes an exercise from the textbook.

Striving to increase their speed, juniors Denise Gissel and Linda Wise use two of the IBM electric typewriters.

French Classes Sponsor Feature Length Movies

Converting the school auditorium into a movie theater, the third, fourth and fifth year French classes sponsored the showing of several feature length motion pictures. Open to all students of the foreign language program, the movies offered an opportunity to improve comprehension ability. Teachers chose a variety of films for the program, including such selections as Lettres de Mon Moulin.

To further aid the progress in pronunciation of would-be linguists, the first and second year courses used textbooks accompanied by tapes. With the increase in oral work required by these texts, W-Lites found numerous occasions to use the modern ear-phones and master tape recording system installed in the laboratory this year.

"Rome ruled that much of Europe!" exclaims Felicia Welsh as Mrs. Katharine Newton discusses a map.

Listening to a native accent, students Linda Whitney and Jon Vitols take a French dictation in the lab.

"Et monsieur, que veuillez-vous?" asks waiter Ty Powell, after recommending Boeuf Bourgogne to classmate Peggy Darr, while Douglas Behrman consults his menu again before making his selection during a skit.

Dreaming of sunny Spain, juniors Patricia Padget and Ed Sproles take an imaginary tour of Madrid, using their Spanish III textbook as a guide.

Girls Pool Efforts, Build Four Hole Golf Course

Arriving with tools in hand, volunteers from the junior gym classes pooled their efforts to construct a four-hole golf course on the girl's athletic field. When the builders finished, classes trudged the range with golfing paraphernalia.

Introducing the Aetna Driver Training Program, students interested in learning to drive practiced on simulated cars. The projection of road conditions onto a screen enabled trainees to respond as if actually driving. They found out what mistakes they had made because a machine had recorded their reactions.

"... then the food goes down this tube . . .," explains junior Cindy Denboe to her health class.

Vigorous calisthenics prepare Jerry Clements for his tournament wrestling match, while Bob Hetzer and Stuart Singer grapple to keep round-robin position.

"Stretch . . . 2 . . . 3 . . . 4 . . .," urges Miss Williams to her sixth period class of combined sophomore and juniors during a rainy day session.

Area Four Year-Olds Attend High School

Finger paints, miniature tea sets, coloring books and dolls sprinkled the room as ten little four year-olds played during their free play hour. Home Economic students supervised, fed and entertained a group of neighborhood children for three periods, four days a week. On the fifth day the students discussed the events of the past week and made plans for the next four days.

On several occasions the girls received assistance from various teachers and students. One art pupil illustrated Eloise while a teacher read the story. A couple of weeks later a French instructor came equipped with his guitar and sang and taught folk songs from Norway and France.

"Cream until smooth"—Gail Robertson follows a recipe while learning to bake a cake without the aid of a mix.

"Perfect," exclaims Judy Sells as she admires the finished product of hours of work with pattern, material and thread.

"Is that going to be a dinosaur?" asks sophomore Linda Dixon of three-year-old Stefani Harper, as they work with modeling clay in the Nursery, sponsored and taught as practice by the girls who take child care courses.

Covered with grease and grime, student mechanics Bob McNabb, Tom Follin and Earnie Binlson probe into mechanical failures.

Making sure all parts are correctly located, sophomore Ken Craft works on converting old nuts, bolts, gears, screws and other assorted parts into a suburban tractor.

Rivals Construct Project For Industrial Arts Show

Forgetting their usual rivalry, the students of Wakefield, Yorktown and Washington-Lee studied together in this year's vocational arts program, which for the first time opened air-conditioning classes to the Patriots and Warriors. Making use of Washington-Lee's shop facilities for their work during two periods daily, members of the program combined their individual skills in constructing working air-conditioners and refrigeration units and later displayed these projects in the department's Industrial Arts Show.

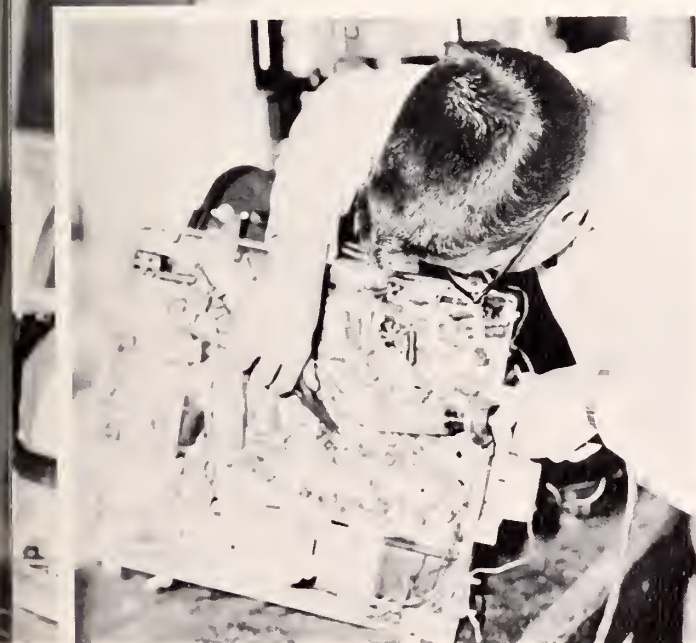

Early in the fall, Graphic Arts students made athletic schedules for distribution to the student body. Later, members of the class printed pocket-sized copies of the Honor Code, gaining practical experience in type setting and printing. Students furnished stationery for the school savings bank and supplied receipts for the Penman Magazine.

In an effort to see the deciding game of the World Series, sophomore John Muzzey locates the disconnected wire in the industrial arts television set.

Planning his home of the future, senior Jan Lindh checks the measurements before starting to build his scale model.

Learning techniques that will improve her reading ability, Jean Neff takes a timed reading test to evaluate the skills she developed in Speed Reading and to see if her comprehension equals her gain in words per minute.

Department Adds Books Courses; Presents Plays

Curriculum changes, the addition of several sets of literature books, and two play productions highlighted the work of the English Department.

For the first year, selected sophomores enrolled in an enriched English course. These students, part of an advanced program, have been together in classes since elementary school. A Language-Music-Art Seminar gave seniors an opportunity for specialized study under different teachers.

This year, the English Department purchased over one hundred textbooks for the benefit of all English teachers desiring supplementary plays, essays, poetry, and vocabulary words for study.

In the fall, dramatists undertook the ambitious task of presenting The Miracle Worker. The tremendous success of this play encouraged dramatists to present another play in the spring.

Correcting footnote form, seniors Evelyne Mayne and Margi Mintz go through the rigors of documenting term papers.

"I go to slay my children . . ." asserts Medea as played by 1956 graduate Ruth White for the Art-English-Music Seminar.

Washington-Lee's own Joan Baez, Alice Jervis, reports on the development of the folk ballad in American literature.

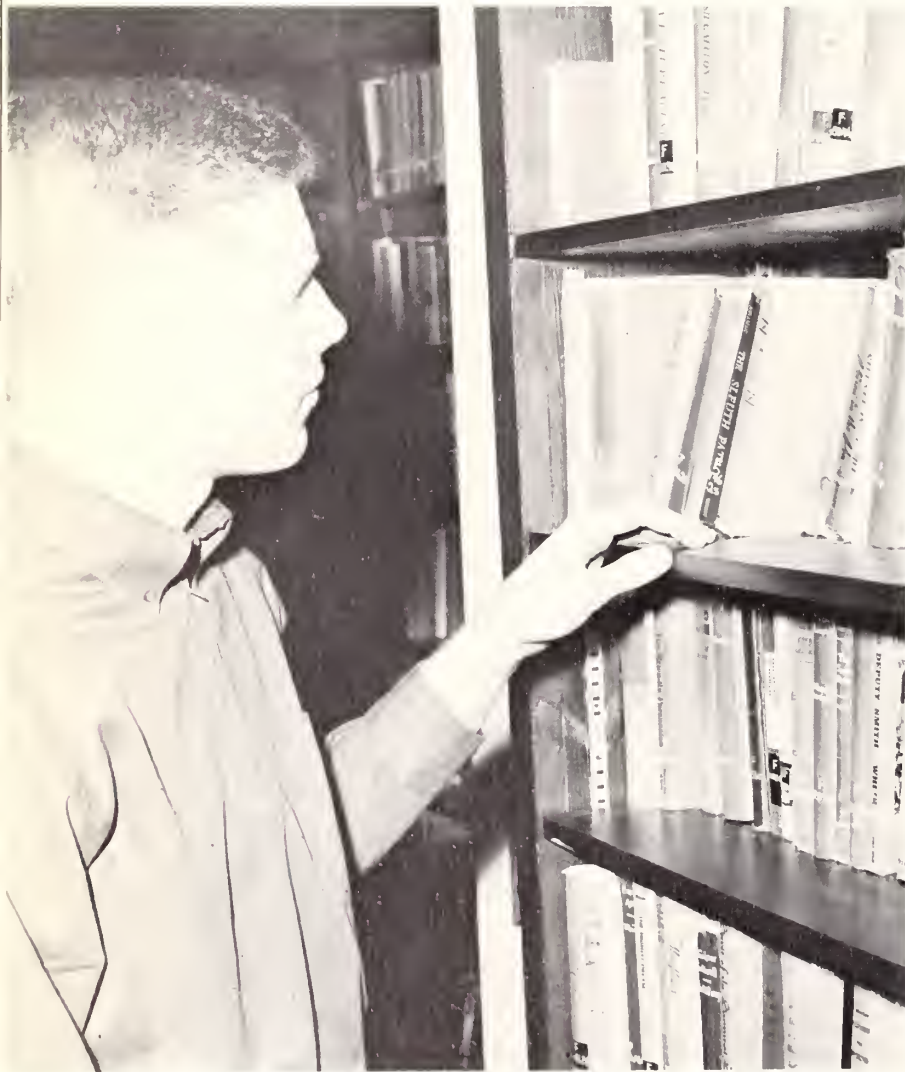

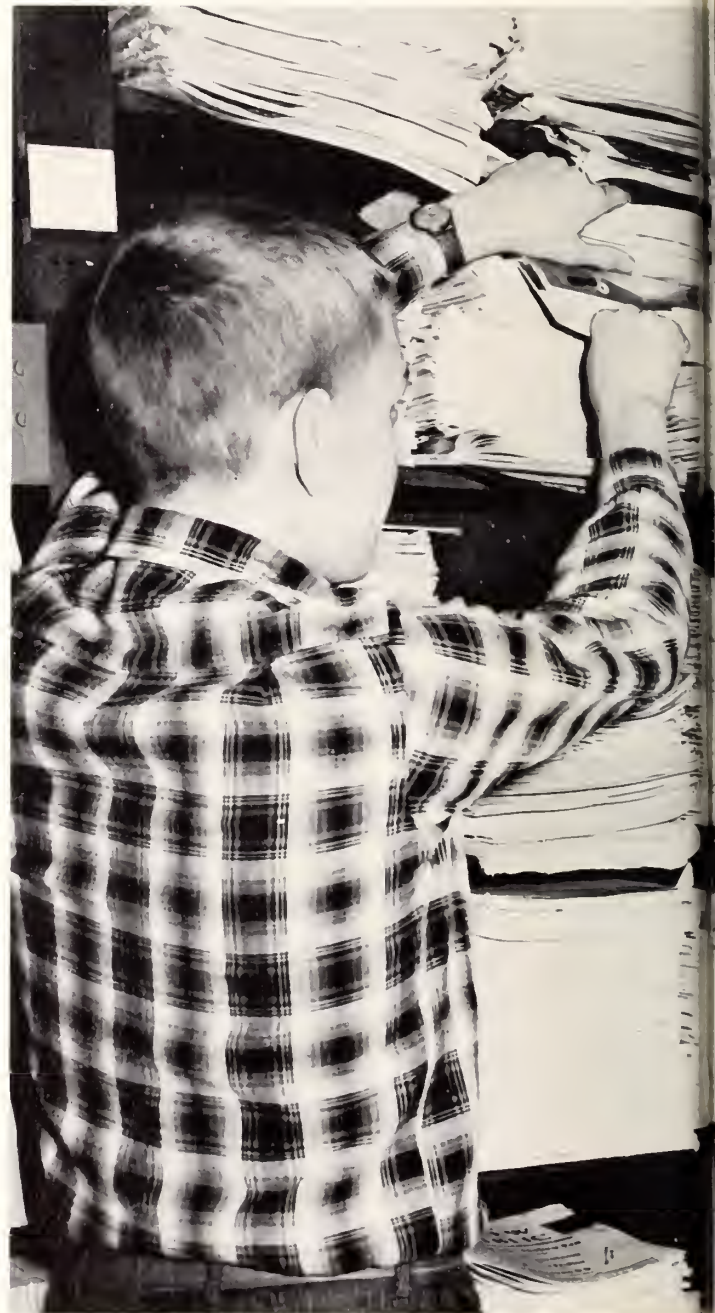

"Are all of these necessary?" exclaims Miss Letitia Lam, librarian, as she checks out an arm-load of books on the life and literary work of Edgar Allen Poe for junior Sally Richardson, collecting materials for her term paper.

"Book report due tomorrow . . ." ponders Clayton Day as he carefully selects an interesting book from the fiction shelf.

"Got it!" exclaims library assistant Charles Ackerson as he pulls out an issue of Look for a confused student, John Girtman.

Taking advantage of the late library hours on Tuesday and Thursday evenings, senior Lynda Haggis, junior Steve Wynn and sophomore Paul Ward do some outside research in preparation for their English term papers.

Students, Faculty Attend September Orientation

Amidst teacups and cookies, incoming members of the faculty learned of Washington-Lee's library procedures. At a tea held during the first week of school, librarians explained the use of special senior library passes, reference books, periodical rooms, reserved books and the time clock.

Students also had an opportunity to learn of special library practices during English classes; after school they learned how to operate tape recorders, projectors and other audio-visual aids.

"Now, where can it be?" wonders Mike Hogan searching through a reference book for the date of the War of Roses.

Math Analysis Teaches Prerequisites for College

Math Analysis for upperclassmen, taught this year for the first time, presented the fundamental topics of College Algebra, including Analytic Geometry. By the end of the year, this program will have taught the prerequisites for beginning calculus in the freshman year of college.

For the second year selected W-Lites took a newly-developed math in the sophomore year. Prepared by the School Math Study Group, the course has been placed in the state curriculum for math. SMSG classes, designed to better prepare the student for college, participated in an evaluation of mathematics courses issued by Stanford University.

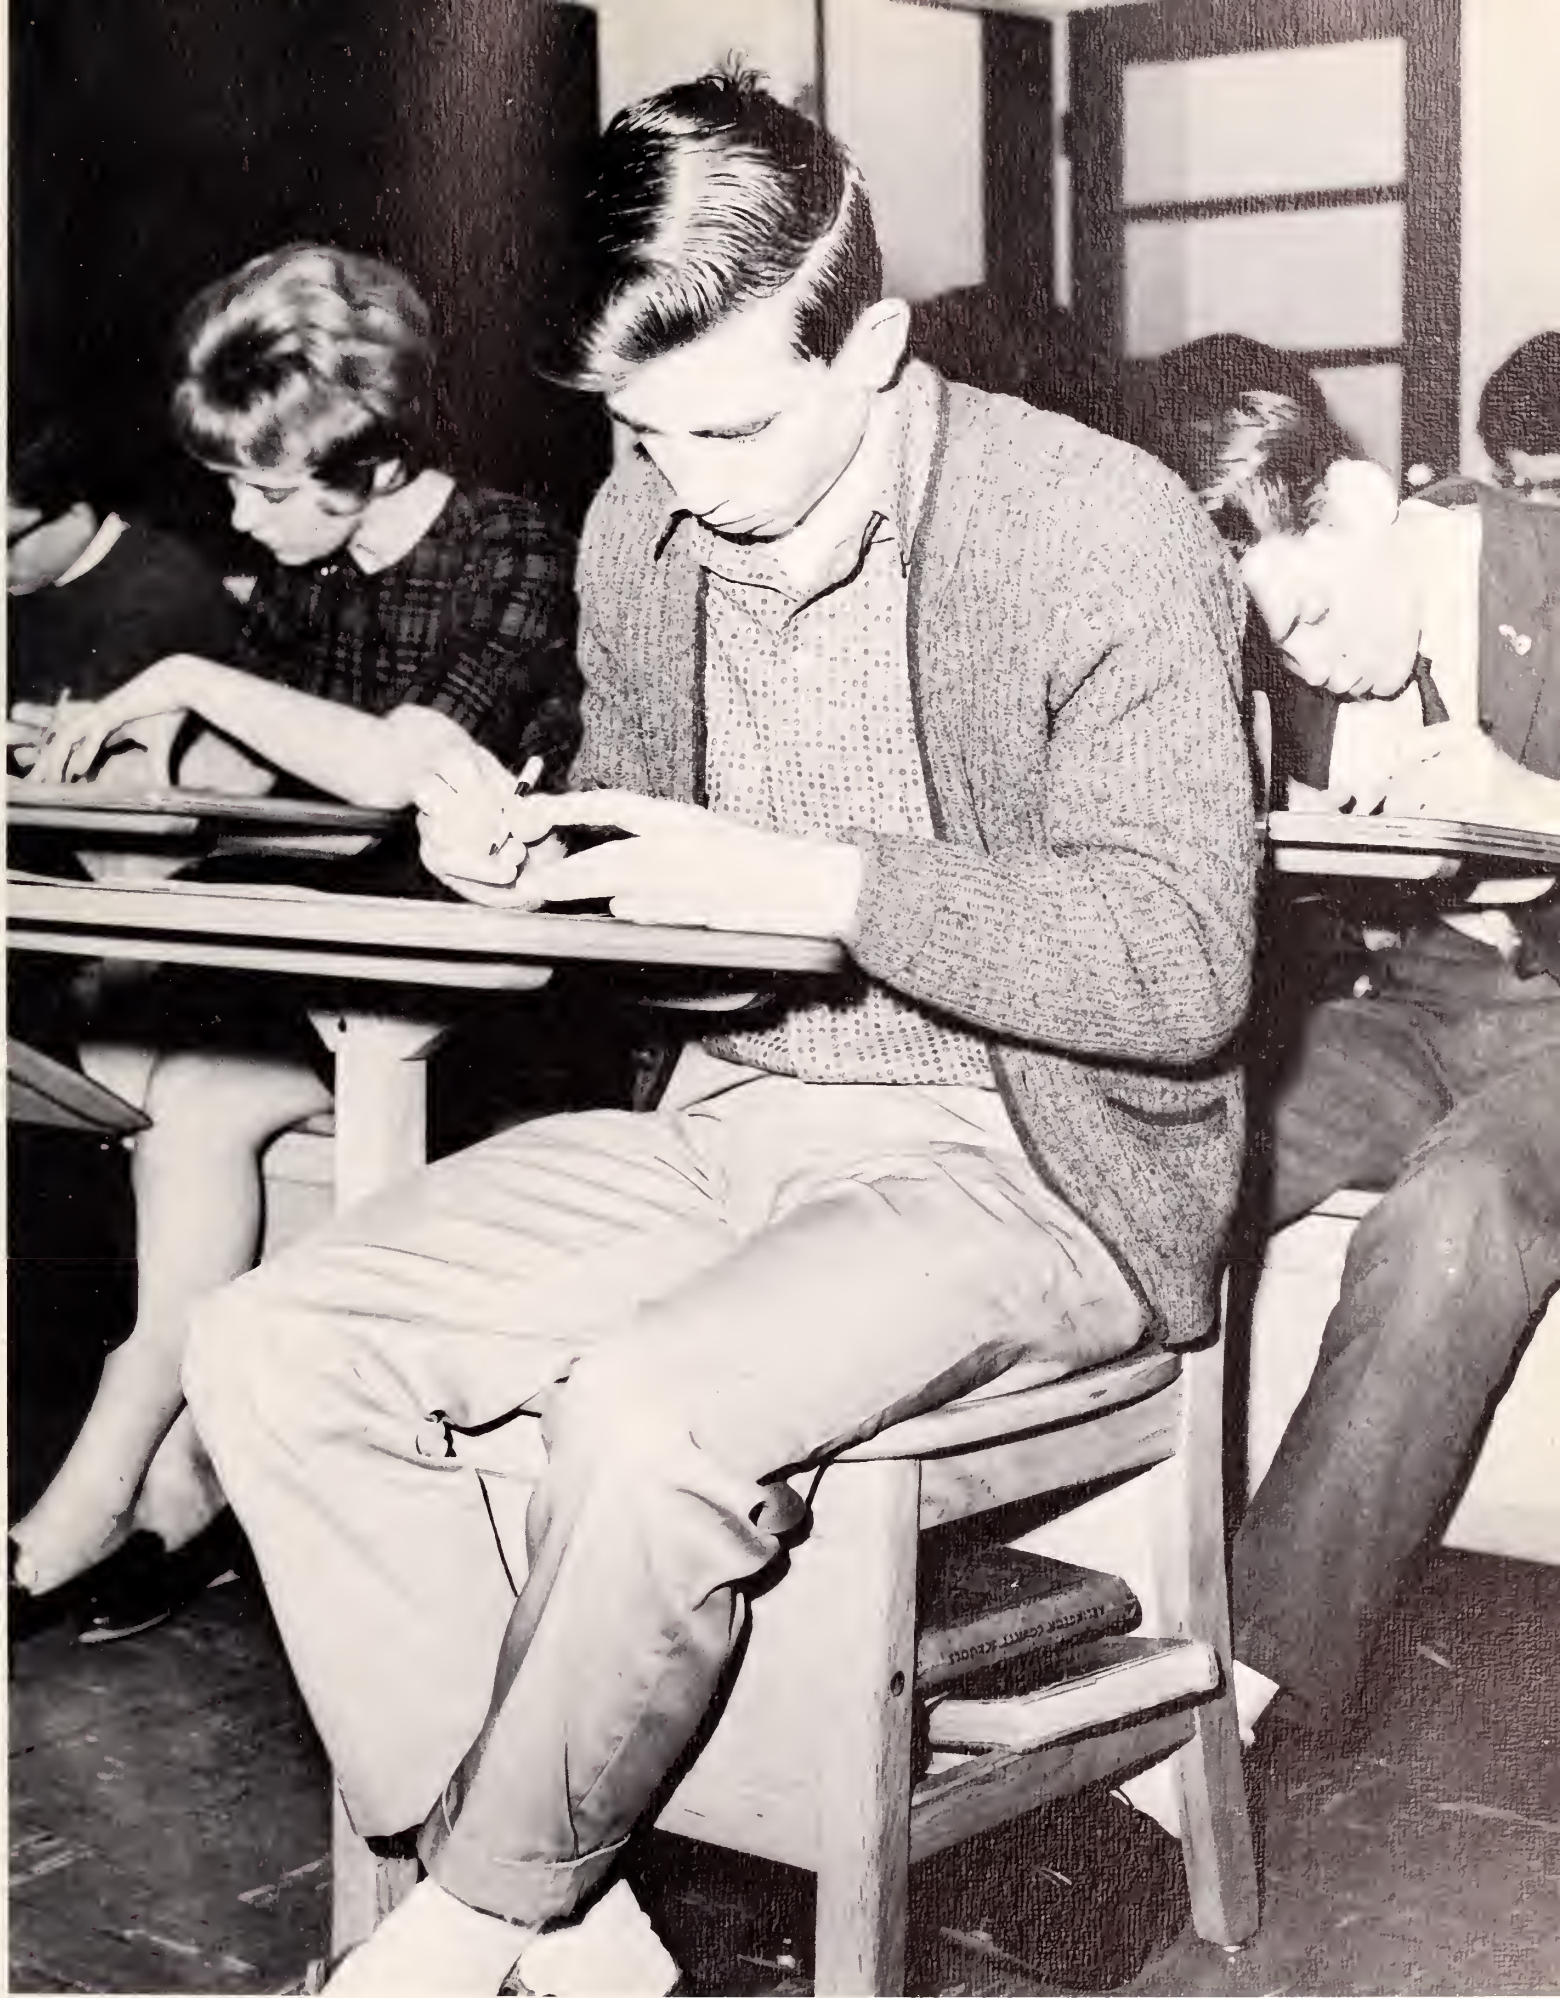

Working at the blackboard, senior Tom Guertin uses straight edge compass and protractor on a problem in plane geometry.

"... then  $A=B$  because of the theorem on binominal expansions," states Mrs. Mary Campbell as she proves a theorem for her algebra class, using one of the Vu-Graphs recently purchased for the mathematics department.

"If  $x^2 - y^2 = 0$ , then  $x^2$  must equal  $y^2$ ," muses sophomore Earl Henderson as he attempts to solve a second-degree equation by substituting values for the unknown quantities during a chapter quiz in Mrs. Louise Allston's algebra class.

"We must move forward with great vigah"—Under Miss Dorothy Baumle's direction, orchestra members clad in coats, hats and scarves, practice in an effort to keep warm, as custodians strive to repair the heater in the music wing.

"This part takes concentration," thinks French Hornist Danny Warman, as he practices for the Christmas assembly.

Singing Groups Serenade With Carols

Attempting to highlight holiday festivities, the Music department provided choral arrangements for the Thanksgiving, Christmas and Easter assemblies. At both choir and chorus performances, the orchestra accompanied the groups and played pieces which they prepared especially for the occasions. Teaming up for concerts in the evenings, the instrumental and choral groups provided entertainment including a Vesper Concert. The Choir also participated in a Sun Rise service at Iwo Jima memorial which set the mood for Easter.

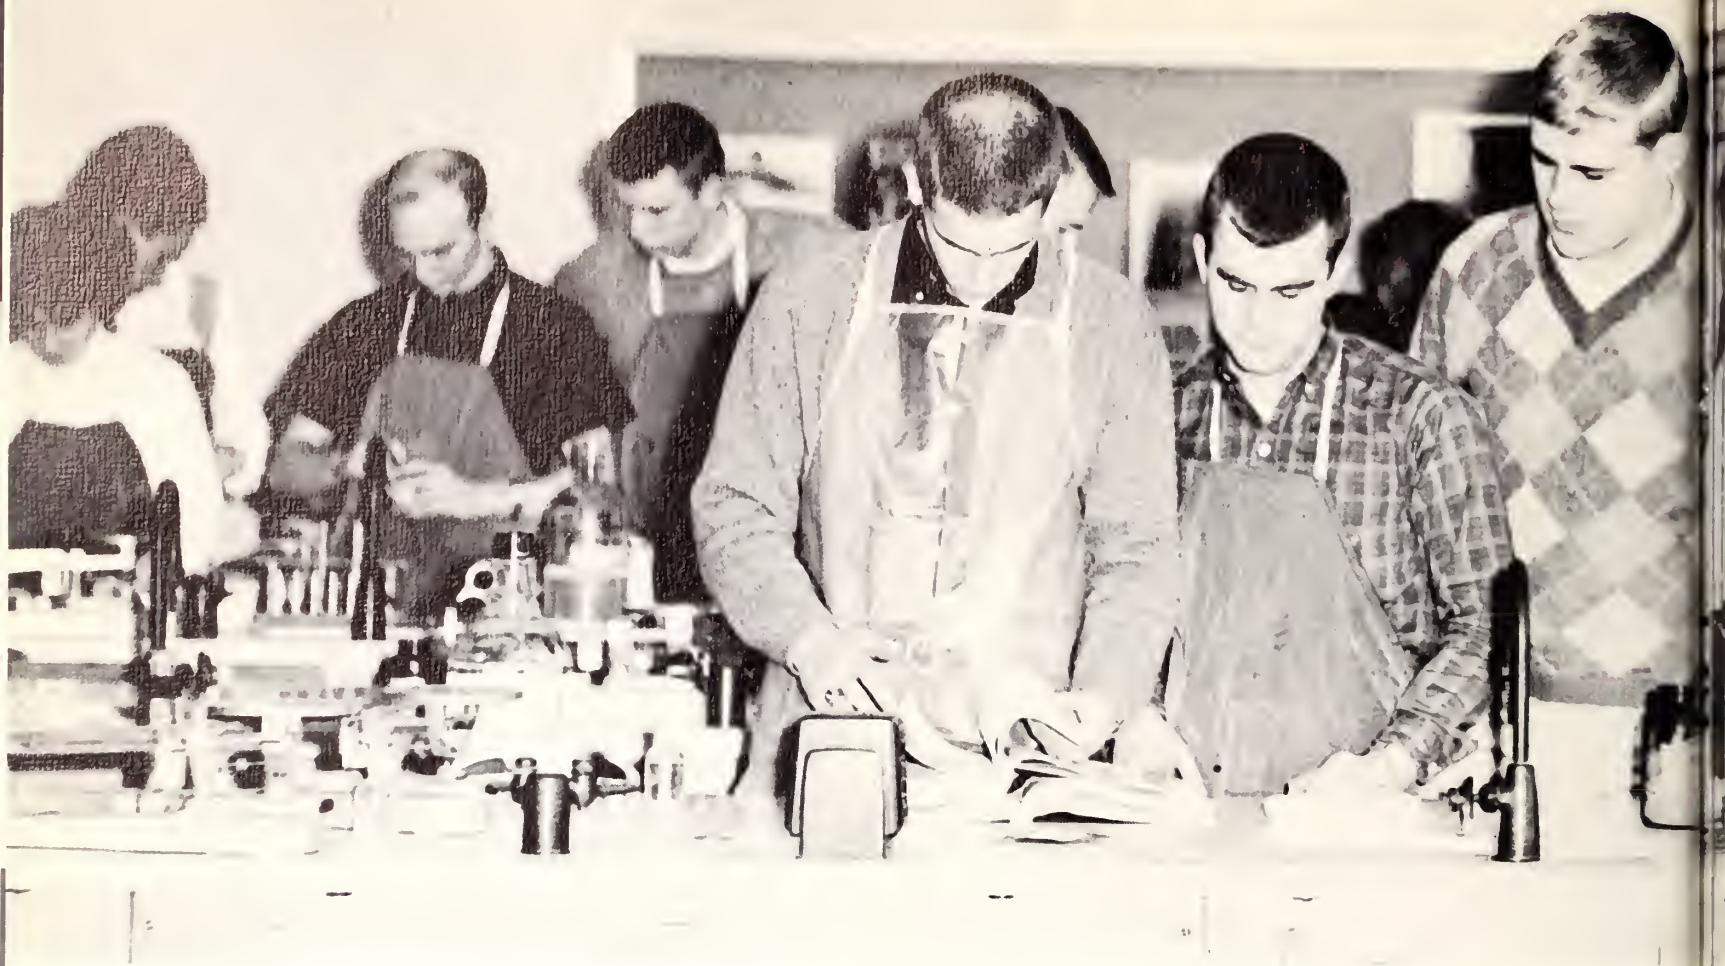

Members of the musical groups braved the raw winter weather to go caroling throughout Arlington. Besides serenading through the county, they gave a concert as a Christmas present to the community.

Practicing a musical score, instrumentalist Diane Wasielewski prepares to try out for Bass first chair.

"Mi-mi-miii . . ." humms Dennis Phipps as he strikes the first note indicated by Susan Gard in Music Theory Class.

Physics Classes Study PSSC Curriculum

While the Chemistry classes made use of the best material incorporated from several sources, all the Physics classes in Arlington County this year studied the program prepared by the Physical Science Study Committee in 1957. Designed by over a hundred of the leading physicists in the country, the PSSC course included new books and lab equipment. The labs consisted of simple equipment that has been specifically designed so not to detract from the experiments themselves.

After having students take an examination, complete a project and appear for a personal interview, judges of the Westinghouse Science Talent Search selected students to compete for scholarships.

Science-minded students participated in the school Science Fair. The winners competed in the Northern Virginia contest; students winning special awards went to the National Fair.

Biologist-artist Judi Blincoe studies a microscopic organism under her powerful microscope while she sketches its outline.

Solution and crystallization present a problem for student chemists as they investigate the nature of the theory of ionization.

By a comparison of water waves to light waves, Carmelo Colon, Ronny Hall and Roger Floyd observe the theory of light in an experiment.

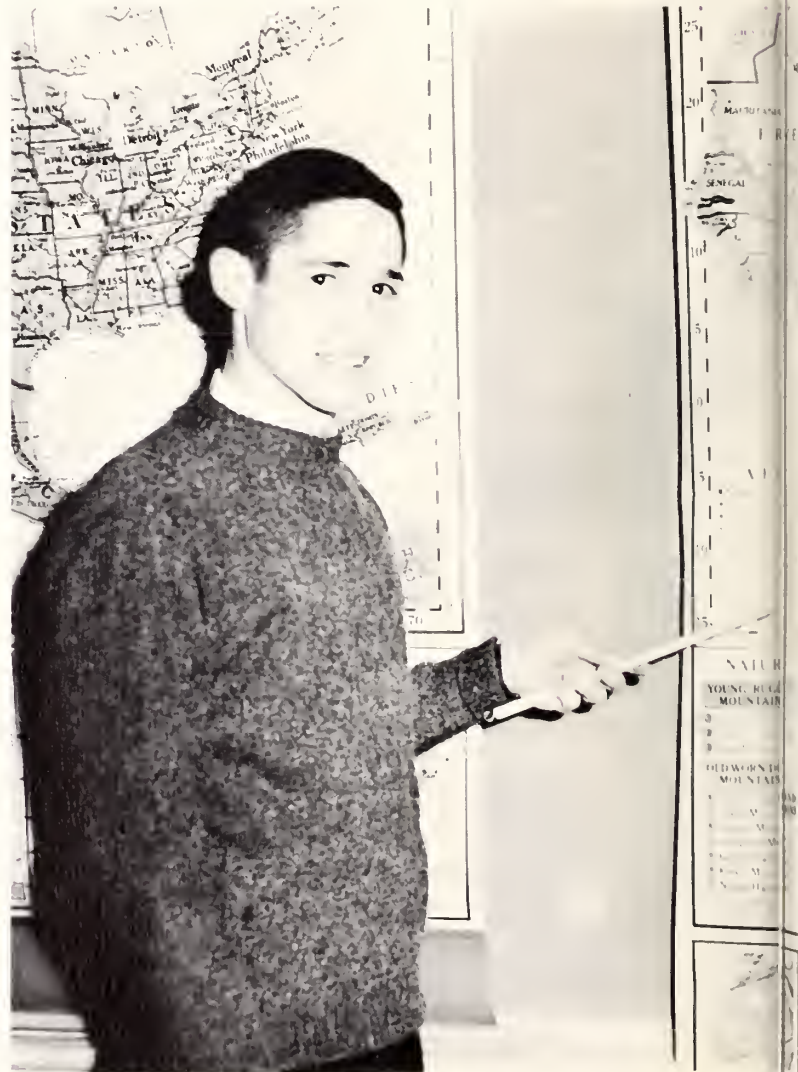

Listening attentively to a review on real estate laws, senior Diane Withorn takes voluminous notes as Mrs. Jay Rothouse, Commercial Law and Economics teacher, prepares her students for an examination.

"91, 92, 93 . . .," counts Social Studies teacher Mr. Simon Korczowski, as he dittos exams for his students.

Turkey Game Exhibition Illustrates Story of Flag

Half-time entertainment at the Thanksgiving Day Game, bulletin board displays and public address announcements represented the department's contribution to the commemoration of Know Your America Week. After an exhibition by the colonial fife and drum corps of the American Legion, Fort Myer's Old Guard Unit of the Third Infantry Regiment presented a pageant tracing the development of the flag from its beginning to today's design.

Early in November, the teachers of the Social Studies Department left their classes to attend a conference sponsored by the Center of Metropolitan Studies. To eliminate the necessity of obtaining substitutes, federal employees from several departments spoke to government and history students on government employment opportunities and answered questions about their various fields of work.

"Shintoism is predominant in Japan . . ." points out Rosemary Burditt during her lecture on religion.

Called upon to recite in Mr. Pond's World History class, senior John Masters uses the map to illustrate his point.

Mrs. Ruth Cox, B.S., Syracuse University; Teaching Assistant at George Washington University; second year on the school board.

Mrs. Elizabeth Campbell, Chairman; B.A., M.A., Salem College, Columbia University; President, Greater Washington Educational Television Association; eleven years on the school board.

School Board's Decision Allows Dances;

Relieving parents of past responsibility, the school board returned sponsorship of dances and other extra curricular activities to schools. The ruling, a revision of another Board decision made in 1959, instructed schools to assume the responsibility for formals and record hops. For the last four years, clubs have undertaken the events with assistance from parents. The obligation now rests with the student body and the school administration.

Dr. Laslo Ecker-Racz, B.S., Ph.D., Harvard University; member of the President's Advisory Commission on Intergovernmental Relations; second year on the school board.

Dr. Barnard Joy, B.S., M.A., Ed.D., Oregon State College, University of Maryland, George Washington University; U. S. Department of Agriculture; President of Virginia School Boards Association; fifteen years on the school board.

Mr. James Stockard, B.B.A., M.A., University of Texas, American University; Deputy Chief Training Branch, International Cooperation Administration; seven years on the school board.

Mr. Ray E. Reid, Superintendent of Schools for Arlington County; B.S., M.A., College of William and Mary; Assistant Virginia State Superintendent of Public Instruction from 1951 to 1958.

Dr. Edward Braun, Assistant Superintendent for Business and Finance since 1948; B.A., M.A., Ph.D., Baldwin-Wallace College, University of Wisconsin.

Superintendents Assist School Systems

Mr. Howard Bovee, Assistant Superintendent for Administration since 1958; B.S., M.A., U. S. Merchant Marine Academy, George Washington University.

Dr. Joseph Johnson, Assistant Superintendent for Instruction since 1958; B.A., M.A., Ed.D., East Texas State College, George Washington University.

Mr. Charles Walsh, Assistant Superintendent for Personnel since 1948; B.A., M.A., University of Tennessee, George Washington University.

After having checked the suggestion box beside him, Mr. O. U. Johansen gives Christmas letters his last minute examination, as he spot checks to see that all late bills have been paid, accounts settled and correspondence answered.

Dear Seniors:

Between now and the day you graduate you will hear a lot of talk about how you will soon be going out into the world to face the future and to strive for success. Many of you may be led to believe that life consists of setting a goal for oneself, achieving that goal and then living blissfully ever after.

If you should ever believe that such a thing takes place in the lives of men, you will one day be rudely disillusioned. Success in the eyes of the world does not guarantee personal success. Acquisition of material goods does not assure happiness.

If you have learned no other lesson in Washington-Lee High School, I hope you have acquired some insight into the true values in life and some understanding of what is fundamental and important in fulfilling your role as a human being on this planet.

Mr. O. U. Johansen, Principal; B.S., M.A., Ed.S., University of Minnesota; formerly Principal of Riverview High School and Director of Secondary Education, Sarasota, Florida.

Michael Assumes Post As Associate Principal

Beginning his first year at Washington-Lee, Mr. W. A. Michael assumed the duties of Assistant Principal and Dean of Boys. Mr. Michael, former Assistant Principal at Kenmore Junior High School, took on the position previously held by Mr. Harry Pitt. In addition to other duties, Mr. Michael supervised the maintenance of buildings and grounds.

Remaining as co-ordinator of all school activities, Mr. O. U. Johansen began his second year as principal. The returning Assistant Principal and Dean of Girls, Mrs. Doris Matthews, arranged extra-curricular activities as one of her duties. Beginning his seventh year as Assistant Principal in charge of instruction, Mr. A. H. Anderson took charge of teaching plans and curriculum.

Mr. Alexander Anderson, Assistant Principal in charge of Instruction; B.A., M.A., Montclair State, Columbia University.

Mrs. Doris Matthews, Assistant Principal and Dean of Girls; B.S., M.A., Ohio State University, George Washington University.

Mr. William A. Michael, Assistant Principal and Dean of Boys; B.S., M.A., Springfield College, American University.

"She has typing in room 228," discovers Mr. Thomas Haynie, head of guidance, as he searches on the master schedule for Mrs. Joanne Levine's Classroom.

Guidance Initiates I B M Scheduling

Innovated as an aid to Guidance, printing of schedules by the Atlantic Research Corporation resulted in a fiasco. Several students found that they had seven subjects, while a few had none. In addition to the schedule mix-ups, spelling errors proved fatal as names such as Mike came out of the machine as "m%k&". Guidance Director Thomas Haynie commented, however, "When the system develops, it will mean much less work for Guidance."

Guidance directed a system of client-centered counseling. By operating under this plan, counselors had additional time to clear up difficulties and plan activities with the individual students.

Mrs. Honora Obourn, B.S., M.A., Columbia University; Sophomore Guidance Counselor.

Jack Wilson, B.S., Wake Forest College, North Carolina State University; Guidance Placement Counselor.

Machines Prepare Homeroom Records

Automation lightened the work of the office staff during the summer. Computers prepared homeroom and study hall lists, a job formerly done by the secretaries. Air conditioners cooled the main office during August, freeing the staff from the discomfort of working in hot summer weather.

Improvements in the office routine included the development of a system of office-faculty communication. The secretaries placed a green-and-white tag in each teacher's mailbox. On arrival at school, faculty members turned the green side of the tag up; a quick glance showed which teachers had arrived. To speed up passing out homeroom materials, the staff marked homeroom teachers' boxes, using a separate color for each grade.

Fall Additions Increase Faculty From 101 to 114

After thirty-five years of service at Washington-Lee, Miss Sally Loving retired in September, the last member of the school's original faculty to do so. Her immediate plans include writing a history of Washington-Lee covering the first three and a half decades of the school's development.

Taking advantage of their three-month vacations, several teachers made trips during the summer. Mr. Robert Linse, Mrs. June Shurtliff, Mrs. Frances Waters, and Miss Elizabeth Dalton visited Europe. Travelers in the Western Hemisphere included Mrs. Doris Matthews and Mr. Roy Anderson.

Eighteen teachers joined the faculty in September. Representing eight departments, the additions increased the staff from 101 to 114.

Two first year teachers, Mrs. Patricia Holcomb and Mr. John Harocopos, sample coffee at a tea.

Mrs. Louise Allston, B.A., Winthrop College, University of North Carolina, Duke University; Plane Geometry, Algebra II; Tikos.

Music, Roped-Off Lines Improve Lunch Periods

Rrrring!—noise increased, chairs scraped, students put away their trays and thronged to doors as they reacted to a newly-installed five-minute warning signal. This bell, the latest effort to improve school cafeteria conditions, helped to eliminate end-of-lunch-period havoc. Other innovations to cut down on confusion usually present in the cafeteria included roped off lunch lines and radio music piped in from the main office.

Cafeteria staff members sold a record number of turkey dinners for Thanksgiving and Christmas meals. Serving special meals early eliminated the previous problem of students having to eat turkey dinner two days in a row. During the holidays in late November, cafeteria staff workers supported the football team by preparing a kick off breakfast before the traditional Old Oaken Bucket game against George Washington High School.

Eighteen Member Staff Maintains W-L Campus

Aided by an eighteen member staff, Mr. Donald McInturff adeptly handled the task of keeping the school clean and in good condition. Their responsibilities included the White House, the main building, the shop building, and the grounds.

With a full schedule of night school classes and many athletic contests, the work of the custodial staff became doubly complicated. The adult Education Program and University of Virginia extension held classes at the school as often as six nights a week. The athletic schedule frequently contained two contests on a single weekend. Mr. McInturff solved the problem by establishing three shifts, two in the daytime and one at night.

Duties of the custodial staff cover a multitude of activities, from cleaning and locking the building to repairing desks and cutting the grass. Over the Christmas holidays the staff waxed all of the floors and cleaned all of the rooms.

"This one seems secure," thinks custodian Willie Payne as he wraps books to be sent to another school.

Fall Sees Students Plan Year's Activities

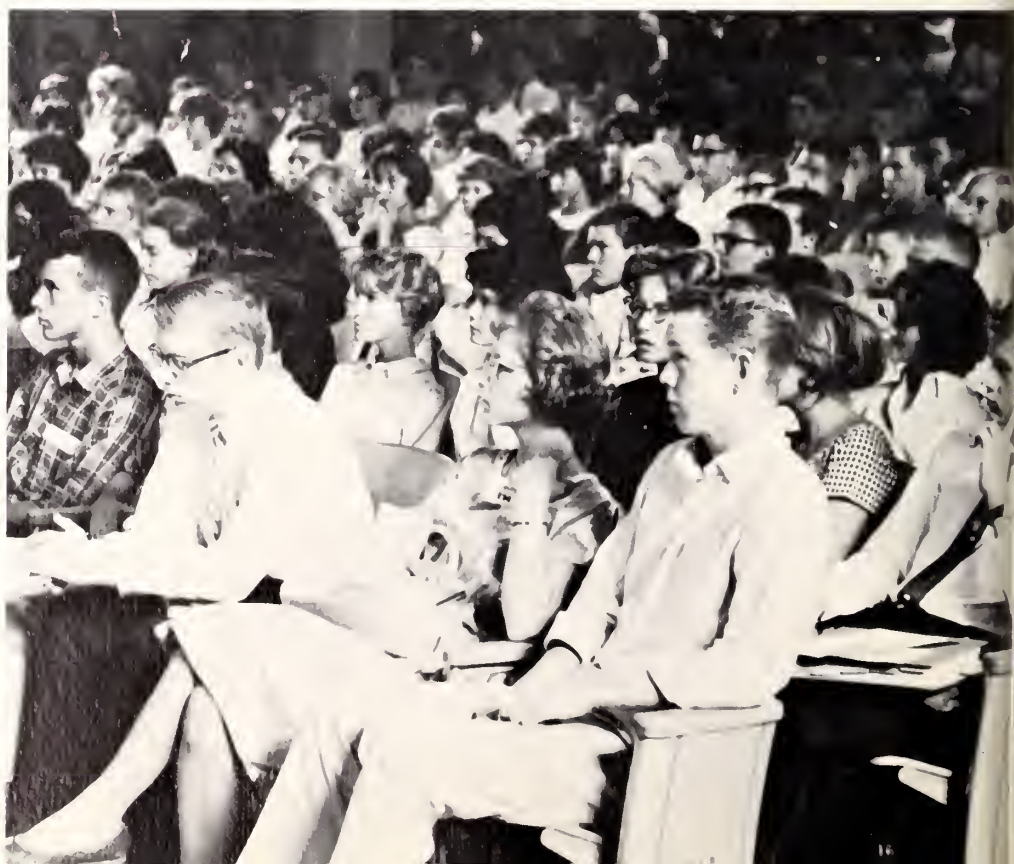

Gold, brown and red leaves crunched underfoot as students returned to school. Orientation session began the year for sophomores and other incoming students and teachers. Cheerleaders, majorettes and the activity band fanned school spirit as crowds cheered the football team to the Northern Virginia Championship.

Open houses, mixers and other club activities crammed the autumn afternoons as W-Lites decided upon their extra-curricular activities for the year. Students with an eye towards a career in the theatre joined Thespians and immediately embarked upon the production of the Miracle Worker.

Highlighting the Fall calendar, the traditional Thanksgiving weekend brought the excitement of the selection of the winning float, the tied Olde Oaken Bucket Game and the final event, the coronation of the football queen at the Turkey Hop.

"Ouch, that hurts!" thinks sophomore Peter Brownback as Doctor Margorie Hughes injects tuberculosis serum.

During the Sophomore orientation, Student Council President Bill Casey instructs sophomores on the lunch lines and procedure in the cafeteria. On the same day the Sophomore Class meets in the auditorium for introductions to the Student Council officers, cheerleaders and principals and to hear panel discussions on life at W-L.

"Insulation is important in cars," explains Mr. Larry Phoenix of the Fisher Body Company.

"You must improve your style," directs supervisor Sue Bates as she watches Pam Edgerton doing Fall cleaning.

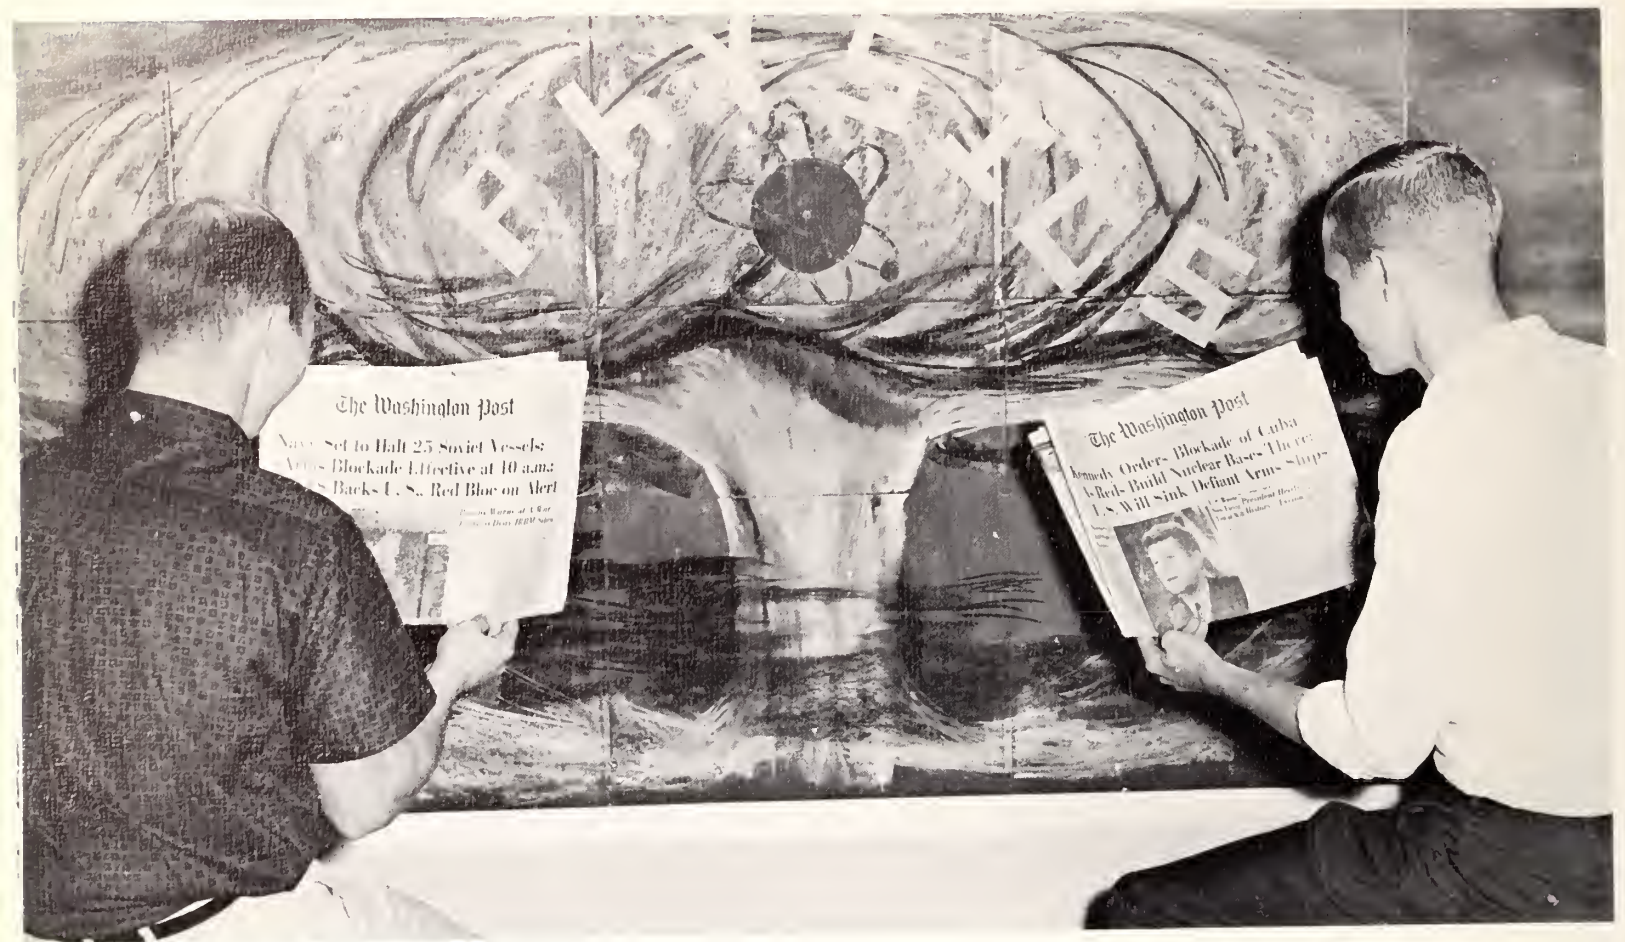

Crisp fall air attracts senior Lee McCormick and a group of folk song enthusiasts to the senior court during their lunch period for an impromptu session of singing and guitar strumming before the bell sounds to end their hootenanny.

Cuban Situation Provokes Artistic Answer

Threat of atomic disaster during the recent Cuban crisis draws attention from seniors Rick Hawthorne and Randy Hawthorne as they view ominous headlines from Washington newspapers before the physics bulletin board.

"Y-O-R-K-K-T-O-W-N? With two 'K's'?" questions senior Steve Buynitzky to Ken Garthune as he points out the spelling error made by Patriot vandals before the October football game between the Generals and the Patriots.

Taking care of one of many details for College Night, Council Vice President Dave Johnson and Mr. Wilmer Kerns put up signs.

Distributing honor code cards, homeroom president Jose Tejada explains the Student Council's project to Howard Harville.

Presenting the proposed senior privileges to anxious upperclassmen, Class President Bob Cocker and Treasurer Diane Babb discuss the privileges with the class and submit them to the approval of the principal, Mr. O. U. Johansen.

Performing their own original snake dance, Delta Tri-Hi-Y members to march at halftime.

Adding the finishing touch to the senior class float, Beckie Newlon fluffs one of the many crepe flowerettes.

Streamers in an array of fall colors, corsages and party dresses add a touch of gaiety to the excitement of the announcement and the coronation of the 1963 football queen at the Turkey Hop, the highlight of the season.

Beta Competition, Game, Turkey Hop

Shocked by a cuff to the mouth, Norma Levin as Helen Keller turns from a Negro girl played by Ellen Rein.

Miracle Worker Crew Performs to Full House

"One of the finest all round casts I've had," said Director James Townsend of The Miracle Worker production. Written by William Gibson, with revisions by the director, the fall dramatic effort, sponsored by Thespians, related the history of the deaf, blind, mute child Helen Keller, played by junior Norma Levin. The entire Keller household became disrupted with the introduction of Helen's Boston teacher, Annie Sullivan. Played by Laurie Macrae, Miss Sullivan had to buck constant family pressure in the handling of Helen. After persuading Captain Keller, junior David Johnson, and his wife Katie, senior Marsha Shuttleworth, she undertook the momentous project of trying to show her student the miracle of understanding.

Constructing a two-story set, with elaborate scenery and costumes, the crew worked each Saturday previous to the December production. Performances ran for three nights to capacity crowds who had seen a preview during English classes.

Discovering that her child is blind, Mrs. Keller, played by senior Martha Shuttleworth, screams frantically for her husband.

Anxiety and tension show through the make-up on the face of Helen's Aunt Ev, portrayed by senior Pam DeWier,

Lone Snow Day Disappoints Busy Pupils

"The sun that brief December day rose cheerless over hills of gray . . ." from Whittier's "Snowbound" do not exactly describe Arlington's two-inch snowfall, but the lines set the mood of a typical day in winter at Washington-Lee.

As Harsh Weather Bypasses Weekdays

Laughter echoed through the gymnasium as the choir used hand motions to illustrate "The Twelve Days of Christmas." Reminding students of the serious meaning of Christmas, Chaplain Marty Hundley spoke on various types of hope. The choir and the orchestra combined to close the assembly with the traditional "Hallelujah Chorus" from Handel's "Messiah."

Icy steps, freezing weather and falling snow do not stop senior William Boehly and junior Chris Marshman as they hurry up the White House steps to keep their appointment with the sports editor of the Blue and Gray.

Lack of snow during the winter months of December, January and February disappointed most students, who received only one "snow day" as a result. For the last three days of January, during In-Service training, W-Lites relaxed from the hectic rush of mid-term exams and assignments.

Caroling Adds Cheer to Christmas Season

Carting a freshly-cut pine to decorate the hall across from the gymnasium, junior Marty Mathews attempts to bring some holiday cheer to the school with festive decorations.

"For me?" exclaims Michael Thrall as he accepts free candy canes from Judy Wagner and Barbara Vice, Kappa Tri-Hi-Y members.

Transforming windows throughout the school into colorful murals, seniors Lee McCormick and Marty Loomis work with tempera during their art class.

Led by balloon-nosed senior Bill Boehly as Rudolph, the "Go-Go Boys," decked with small branches and rope harnesses, pull a mock-up of Santa's sleigh in a performance at the annual Christmas assembly.

Thirty Students Visit Riverside-Brookfield,

Lee's exchangees leave the gymnasium after an assembly they presented following their trip to Riverside-Brookfield.

Demonstrating the latest fad at Riverside-Brookfield High School in Chicago, domestic exchangee Evans Hays tries to teach the exclusive art of yo-yoing to fellow Washington-Lee High School exchangees Jack Lowery and Jeffrey Smith.

Present Skit, Talks at Exchange Program

"Gee, it's good to be home," exclaims senior exchangee Phillip Warren to W-Lites Martha Frith and Judi Namias as he and fellow traveler, junior Neil Shawen, leave the train at Union Station after their all-night journey.

Addressing the entire student body at a special assembly featuring the domestic exchange, senior Sandi Marrs speaks about her impressions of the Chicago school's scholastic facilities which include their "gadgets" language laboratory.

Drawing a parallel between the divided seats in the gym and some educational policies, Mr. Simon Korczowski speaks at the Science assembly.

Illustrations add interest to the speech Mrs. Jean Touchette gives to sophomores concerning their future careers in the business world.

"I do, I mean it fits fine," says junior Harriet Cooper as she is fitted for her senior class ring by a representative of Dieges and Clust Incorporated as Terry Lucas awaits her turn in the line stretching to the cafeteria.

W-Lites Relax During In-Service Holidays

During a week of feverish work at the White House before a deadline, junior Nancy Zurich takes time out to admire a small bush under the back porch covered with sleet and icicles, caused by thawing and freezing temperatures.

"Look, fella', are you sure this will work?" wonders anchor-man, senior Lloyd Rothouse, as his companion, frustrated kite-maker Jim Thompson, attaches a make-shift tail to the paper glider before they fly it in the senior court.

Breezes Blow Spring Fever into Classes

An epidemic of Spring fever hit the school by storm as warm sunshine and mild temperatures drew students out to the various courts surrounding the school during study halls and lunch.

Blue skies and warm breezes beckoned the crew to the Potomac, the baseball team to the diamond and the tennis team to the court as Spring sports got under way. Girls also responded to the President's call for physical fitness by participating on softball and canoe teams.

Ordering commencement announcements, calling cards, thank-you notes, measuring for and ordering caps and gowns and choosing the class valedictorians, seniors prepared for graduation exercises.

Following the cram sessions, apprehension and tension of final exams, juniors and seniors rushed into planning, decorating and shopping as they anticipated the festivity of prom night.

"This shot may make the difference," thinks Jean Wattles as she aims for a basket during tryouts for the junior-senior game.

"Football. F-O-O-T-B-A-L-L," explains senior Alan Scarritt to fellow team member Kathy Barrett and Libby Roth as they prepare for a game on Bermuda Day.

Varsity trackmen Terry Donnelly and Bob Sjogren take a break from a workout to visit an FHA open house.

Copy Writers Struggle to Meet Deadline;

Remeasuring the final layout for a confused staff member, Layout Editor Betty McChesney reports a copy length.

Blue and Gray advisor Mr. Herman Menzer enters the White House.

"I can't get this caption to fit," thinks Sports Editor Alan Scarritt as he attempts to finish the intramurals section before the February deadline.

Photographers Roam Halls With Cameras

Typewriters clacked, desk drawers slammed and shutters clicked as thirteen members of the Blue and Gray staff raced to meet a deadline. Copy writers searched dictionaries for novel words to use, while layout designers struggled to make pictures fit their spaces. Photographers roamed the halls with heavy camera equipment in search of suitable subjects and then returned to the White House to develop and print the negatives.

In the middle of October, the six editors and their sponsor traveled to New York City for three days of yearbook courses and workshops at Columbia University. While there, the staff received ratings of Medalist and All-American, the two highest awards given, for the 1962 book.

Composing a first-year addition to the regular staff, three juniors worked after school each afternoon to supplement the work done by the first and sixth period staffs.

Checking pictures, copy and layouts before the final deadline, Editor-in-Chief John Bagwell eliminates all possible mistakes.

"How about dashed instead of ran?" suggests Managing Editor Kathy Barrett as she checks a piece of sports copy.

"Touch of Rome?" asks Advertising Manager Levoy Davies as she and Lynn Ferneyhough write copy.

"One more name," says Circulation Manager Peggy Evanston to her assistant, Harriet Leichtman, as they check sales.

"How does that sound?" Mr. William Cleary, sponsor, and Editor-in-Chief Libby Roth discuss copy.

Paper Extends Coverage Through Classroom Tips

News articles featured information gathered by volunteer forces, as the Crossed Sabres developed a system of extensive school coverage. A network of English classroom reporters turned in tips to the White House through the Crossed Sabres mailbox in front of the school's main office.

Under the guidance of first-year sponsor, Mr. William Cleary, the staff reorganized editorial positions. Front and back page editors replaced the news editors. Students unable to work on the newspaper had the opportunity to have their work published by submitting it to the staff.

Beginning in March, every other issue of the Crossed Sabres included an issue of Scholastic Roto, a nationwide school publication.

Students Submit Entries on Penman Day

Seeking a wider range of student talent, the Penman stimulated W-Lite's interest in submitting articles for publication through posters, bulletin boards and Penman Day. Using photographs in addition to student illustrations, the magazine added pictorial features to its usual poetry, essay and short story sections.

Council Members Meet During Summer Vacation

Meeting many times during the summer months and every day during the last week of summer vacation, the Student Council planned and organized activities for the coming school year.

In September the Council carefully coordinated school activities for the first of the year. This included orientation of the sophomore class, printing and distributing the school handbook, and arranging for clubs to serve cokes at the mixers.

During the winter the Council planned an alumni dance and organized the Domestic Exchange. Weather forced cancellation of the dance, but the Domestic Exchange proved a complete success. In May the Council sponsored Novelty Weekend, which featured Bermuda Day and a special movie.

Group Selects Music for Seasonal Affairs

Strains of Symphony No. 5½, "A Symphony for Fun," issued from the auditorium, as the audience listened to the Orchestra perform at the Christmas Concert. The Orchestra also played several musical numbers with the accompaniment of the Choir, including the traditional finale to the program, "The Messiah" by Handel.

Conducted by Miss Dorothy Buamle but almost entirely governed by the students, the Orchestra rehearsed first period in the Instrumental Room. Miss Buamle selected a long list of musical compositions, and the students chose their favorite music from the list. Student leaders often took the baton to conduct at rehearsals.

These practices paid off at the special music assemblies and many concerts presented during the school year. Concerts at which the Orchestra performed included the Arlington County Festival, the Christmas Concert, the Spring Concert, and the Assemblies at Thanksgiving, Christmas and Easter.

Activities Band Guides

Traffic for March Affair

Selling programs, managing the curtain, guiding the traffic into the parking lot, assisting in the cafeteria and checking hats and coats kept the activities band occupied the night of the Spring Festival during the middle of March. Band members also assisted as ushers during the Spring Concert held on the twenty-eighth of February.

Other activities of this group of musicians included playing with the football and pep bands. At various concerts members of the activities band substituted for absent members of the Concert Band.

During the fifth period of each day the band met and practiced their instruments and acquired a knowledge of music theory. In this course they learned about the life and works of Bach, Schumann, Brahms, Schubert and many of the other famous composers. Their course of study also included the development of the classical, romantic and baroque styles in music as well as a study of harmony.

Concert Band Performs With Madrigals, Choir

For the first time the Concert Band, Madrigal singers, and Choruses participated together in the Christmas Concert. This concert featured traditional Christmas songs, in addition to various other musical compositions.

In February the Concert Band selected nine of its best musicians to the All-State band festival. Top high school musicians from all over the state participated in one of the two All-State bands. A free concert culminated a week-end of practicing under two well-known conductors.

In April the Concert Band presented its annual Spring Concert with the Choruses. As part of this program they presented the high school premier of Prelude and Dance by Paul Creston.

Marching Band Tunes Generate School Fervor

Clapping their hands and stamping their feet to keep warm, members of the Marching Band paraded into the Washington-Lee War Memorial Stadium each Friday night to play for the football games. Generating enthusiasm among W-Lites, the band chose marches and traditional selections such as "Shine". Traveling by school bus, members of the Marching Band also attended away games. Occasional after-school and evening practices added such pieces as "The Saints Go Marching In".

With Carols, 'Messiah' at Yule Assembly

Evergreen trees and lighted candles adorned the stage on the evening of the traditional Candlelight Concert. Members of the Choir and Symphony Orchestra entertained faculty members and W-Lites with a variety of seasonal selections and climaxed the program with portions of Handel's "Messiah." Alumni joined present Choir members in offering a rendition of "Silent Night." An open house held after the concert gave alumni and choir members an opportunity to reminisce and to sing carols.

Early Easter Sunday morning, sleepy members of the choir provided music for the Sunrise Service at the Netherlands Bell Tower. In November, members of the choir visited the Washington Cathedral to participate in a special service. This concert commemorated the founding of the National Fellowship Program, sponsored by the Young Women's Christian Association.

"How about dividing the choir for a round?" suggests choir president Phillips Arberg, senior, to director Miss Florence Booker as they propose tentative plans for the concert to be held during the spring months.

Singers Rehearse on Tuesday Afternoons

Singing for their own enjoyment and to prepare for occasional performances, the Boys' Glee Club met every Tuesday afternoon. After their regular practice, the group's members held informal song sessions. In February, members of the group sang at Stratford Junior High School to interest future W-Lites in joining the music program.

Girls' Vocal Group Sings at Junior Highs

Clad in white robes and dark skirts, the members of the Girls' Choir performed at the Thanksgiving and Christmas assemblies, the Christmas Concert and the traditional Spring Concert. Visiting Kenmore Junior High, the girls attempted to arouse interest in the Girls' Choir among the young vocalists in the audience.

"Does that clock say seven thirty?" asked a bleary-eyed Madrigal pulling off her coat in the music room. The thirteen singers met each morning before school for an hour practice. Performances at the State Department and on WMAL television station included contemporary music as well as the traditional French and English Madrigals.

Christmas carols drifted down the corridors of Washington-Lee as the singers wandered through the halls, stopping outside each homeroom.

Searching for perfect pitch, Madrigal president senior Pete Daymont plays chord progressions on the piano.

Elos Members Sell Refreshments at Play

Assorted cookies and soft drinks supplied by Elos members greeted the Miracle Worker audience during intermission. The honor society sold the refreshments to raise money to provide a scholarship for some deserving W-L student. The individual received the one-hundred dollars on the basis of academic average and contribution to the school.

Lasagne and varied forms of talent highlighted the Elos induction. Members of the honor society chose something that they could do to entertain those attending. The variety of entertainment included "Maria" and a photograph display.

French Dramatists Produce, Direct Play

Collecting props, making costumes and attending after-school rehearsals, members of the French Honor Society prepared to present the comedy, La Malade Imaginaire. W-Lites and other guests had the opportunity to see performances of the play on two consecutive evenings. Using the proceeds from this production, members of the society bought a ten volume French Dictionary for the library.

Readings from the French Bible opened each of the monthly meetings of the French Honor Society. At these meetings, members planned various activities such as their annual excursion to a French restaurant. During the Christmas season, members of the society went caroling in the W-L neighborhood. Learning about the life and customs of the youth of France, the Society encouraged its members to correspond frequently with French students.

Society Observes Traditional Customs

Composed of fourteen German language scholars, the German Honor Society sponsored various cultural activities during the year.

At Christmas time the Society held a party, observing many German customs. They made a Yule Log, played German games, and exchanged stockings filled with candy. In the spring members attended a banquet at a German restaurant.

During one of the monthly meetings Mr. Hans-Peter Klose, woodworking teacher, gave a talk on Germany. A native of Kiev, he spoke on his boyhood in Germany and the German people. After his talk, the officers served cookies and punch while other members asked questions.

Honor Group Inducts Members in Winter

At a special induction ceremony in the auditorium on February 26, the National Honor Society admitted students who met the academic requirements established by the society. These criteria, a 4.0 grade average for sophomores, 3.5 for juniors, and 3.2 for seniors, limited the number of inductees to two per cent of the student body.

In order to recognize the members of this organization and provide for an exchange of ideas, the Arlington Parent-Teacher Association sponsored a banquet for all National Honor Societies in the county. This meeting gave each of the members a chance to exchange opinions about club activities.

Society Members See Slides of Rome, Greece

Colorful slides of Europe furnished the entertainment at one of the Monday night meetings held by the Latin Honor Society. Viewing the ruins of the city of Rome and other famous sights of Italy, students learned more about the ancient and modern culture of the country.

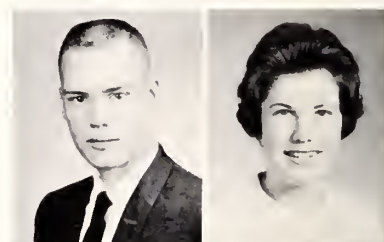

Washington's architecture furnished the subject for discussion at a winter meeting of the society. A guest speaker pointed out the influences of Roman design present in District buildings.

Group Peddles Hot Dogs to Hungry Fans

Charcoal broiled hot dogs joined the bill of fare offered to hungry fans at football games this fall. Especially cold nights saw coffee and hot chocolate introduced to the menu. Science Honor Society members spent the afternoons before home games stocking the concession stands with food in preparation for the evening's crowd.

In addition to their money making activities, society members borrowed books and pamphlets from the National Science Foundation to establish a library in room 213. This library lent material of a technical nature to the student body.

Honor Society Presents Adapted Spanish Plays

On Friday, February 15, the Spanish Honor Society presented Escenas Cortas, six short plays 30 seconds to 12 minutes in length. Organization officer Debby Johnson adapted the works of four Spanish authors for the group's major project of the year. The adaptations included Pagar o no Pagar by the classical Spanish playwright Lope de Vega. Participants Judi Namias and Rick Fox each wrote one play. The group also contributed books to the school's twenty-four-volume Spanish library.

In the fall the society held an introduction meeting for members returning to school. During the holidays, members enjoyed specially-prepared Spanish dishes at a Christmas party.

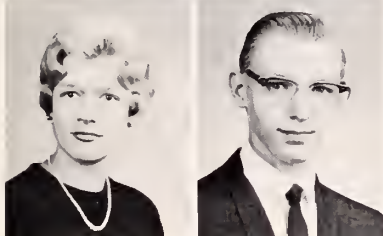

"Hey, wait, that's not in the script," warns Judi Namias to Ed Sproles during a rehearsal for Escenas Cortas.

Bureau Members Speak at Kiwanis Club

"Be sure to include the correct zone" remarked a member of the Speaker's Bureau as he practiced a speech on expediting mail service to give during a meeting of the Kiwanis Club. Other members of the honor society prepared speeches and gave them at similar civic organizations.

Skits and a panel discussion highlighted the assembly presented by the Speaker's Bureau for the sophomore class. The demonstration outlined good study habits that would improve grades.

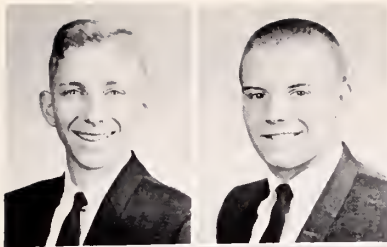

Increasing the possibility of education for the blind, society members taped books that could help individuals of all grade levels.

"I suggest that we have second semester tryouts for the Bureau in February," comments Speaker's Bureau President

LaLinda La Motte at a January meeting, while Senior Mike Holston listens and makes suggestions.

Stock Wizard Speaks to Mathematicians

Is there a possibility that a fourth or fifth dimension exists? Tikos members entertained the idea which Bill Clapp presented from a mathematical hypothesis at a meeting of the honor society. Another speaker, sophomore financial expert Chip Schrott, introduced the probability of controlling chance in purchasing stocks and bonds. Other guest speakers lectured on their occupations.

Broadening the scope of service, the society planned to purchase a duplicating machine for the school's math department. Trigonometry, Geometry, and Algebra teachers could use the machine to mimeograph tests for their classes.

Thespians Sponsor Hoot, Films, Readings

Sponsoring foreign movies, dramatic readings by university students and hootenannies kept the Thespians busy between productions of The Miracle Worker and Bell, Book and Candle.

Thespians began the year by moving out of the old Thespians room into a small room on the back of the stage. Shortly after moving, Thespians and apprentices began scrubbing, hammering, painting, fixing lights, climbing rafters and gathering costumes and props for the Fall production. During the play, members managed the lights, props, curtains, sound, sets and costumes.

Journalism Society Inducts Six at Dinner

Following an induction dinner of tomato juice, broiled chicken, tossed salad and cake, the fall Quill and Scroll inductees received their gold pins. Each of the pins had the name of the position the inductee had held for the past year. During the autumn induction the Maud Orndorff Chapter of the Quill and Scroll membership increased from four to ten; more students joined the literary honor society at the end of May.

During the spring the editors of all the scholastic publications in the area had a conference at the White House. The editors from the various schools discussed possible future improvements.

Alpha Donates Money From Sales to CARE

Many times assuming the role of a bakery, Alpha Tri-Hi-Y puts its business profits to use while undertaking many service projects. At the beginning of the school year, Alpha members solicited YMCA mints to build up their treasury. Throughout the year, the club sold donuts once a week after school. CARE received all profits from the donut sales as a donation. A bake sale in January contributed to the American Field Service. Alpha also purchased corsages for the cheerleaders.

During Christmas holidays, the club made several visits to an old folks' home, entertaining patients with Christmas Carols. Members prepared traditional baskets at Thanksgiving and Christmas.

Besides service projects, Alpha held a number of social activities. They co-sponsored an open house with Sigma after a football game. A special tea honored many of the Alpha alumni, while a Pot Luck Supper in October initiated new members.

Presiding over the monthly meetings, Alpha Tri-Hi-Y President Carol Reynolds displays the cookie boxes they plan to sell.

Hospitalized Children Receive Chocolates

Surrounded by overflowing Christmas stockings, Beta Tri-Hi-Y girls spent one of the Saturdays of the Christmas holidays at a "stocking stuffing party," filling bags with candy canes, chocolates, peppermints, miniature dolls and soldiers. The girls distributed the stockings to boys and girls staying at the Arlington Community Hospital.

Welcoming back the alumni, club members helped serve tea and cookies during second period the last day before the vacation. Another Christmas activity consisted of selling doilies, placemats and covered hangers, as well as distributing tuberculosis seals at the Clarendon Post Office.

Brightening up the winter months, Beta Tri-Hi-Y joined with Tau Tri-Hi-Y and Phi Hi-Y to sponsor a dance after the basketball game with Yorktown.

Opening the meeting with a Bible reading, Susie Higgins reads, while Beta Tri-Hi-Y President Gail Koenig waits to begin.

Beta Members Collect Food for Poor Families

Early Fall brought the first of Beta Club's projects, "Halloween for the Hungry." To complete this project girls collected canned food which the welfare department distributed to poor families in Arlington County. Other Fall activities included selling football programs, planning a bonfire the night before the Thanksgiving game, and ushering at the Civic Opera in Arlington.

During the Winter Beta girls visited the Home for the Incurables, worked at the Heart, Tuberculosis and Cancer centers, ushered at the Vesper Concerts and made Valentine favors for the trays of patients at the National Orthopedic Hospital.

"Be my Valentine," thinks Beta girl Debi Movitz as she prepares miniature hearts for children at the Arlington Hospital.

Club Members Discuss Christianity, Communism

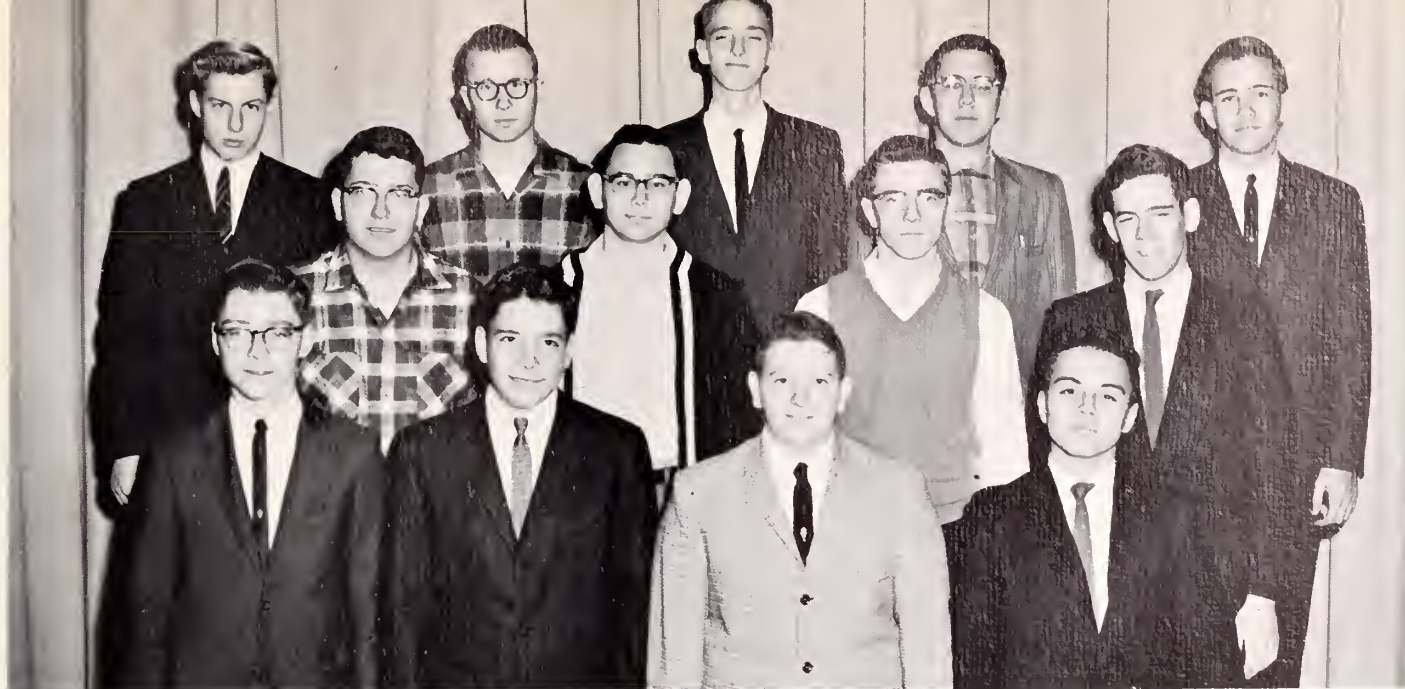

Vivid posters featuring pictures of a cross, hammer and sickle announced a special meeting of the Bible Club. At the meeting, members and other interested students discussed the world roles of Christianity and Communism. Other meetings featured skits by the club members, movies, singing and guest speakers who spoke to students about the Bible's application to daily living.

Helping students and members of the faculty complete their last-minute Christmas shopping, the Bible Club sold candy during the Yuletide season. Using a portion of the proceeds from these sales, the club purchased several shares in the American Field Service, aiding in the drive to have two exchange students at Washington-Lee next year.

Club Players Maneuver Chessmen at Meeting

"It is best to deploy the knights before the bishops or the castles," instructed the President of the Chess Club at one of the weekly meetings. Acting accordingly, the varsity chess players put this strategy to work. The meetings served as a proving ground for experienced varsity players as well as practices for beginning chess players.

Debaters Search for Tax Information

Troops of debaters braved rush hour traffic every Saturday for a month to gather information at the Library of Congress. Searching current materials for support of their plan concerning the levy of import taxes proved worthwhile for the club members. Their efforts enabled them to provide enough capable debaters to debate in two Northern Virginia leagues and keep a jayvee team.

Winning the interest of parents, twenty-one debaters enlisted forty-eight judges for their leagues. Experienced judges trained volunteers in two sessions. After the instruction, trainees gained eligibility to determine the debate winner.

Illustrating a point with a graph, junior Dave Johnson practices for an important debate with Wakefield.

Placing his carefully prepared notes in a folder, Debate Club President Rick Fox leaves for a varsity meet.

With Crepe Paper Entry Delta Wins Float Prize

Tracing patterns, stitching and stuffing animals appeared as a typical scene during the meetings of Delta Tri-Hi-Y in January. The club's managerie of elephants, tigers, dogs and a few undeterminable specia caused a great commotion in the Children's ward at Arlington Hospital.

"That'll be twenty cents," says Delta member Lynn Riggles to senior Barbara Wilson at the after school bake sale.

Dinner Features Awards For Outstanding Pupils

Competition for student of the year ended at a dinner given by the Distributive Education club for its members. The sponsor also made presentations for the best salesmanship, ad lay-outs and display cases to the individuals in the club who had earned the honors.

Attempting to show appreciation to the business men in the area who had given employment to W-Lites during fourth, fifth and sixth periods and after school, each member of the club invited his employer to a banquet at Hogates in the District. After a roast beef dinner, a man from the Better Business Bureau spoke.

Watching the chassis move down the assembly line until it emerged completely constructed, the D.E. club learned all about car parts on a field trip to the Chevrolet Assembly plant in Baltimore. On the way home the students stopped at the Safeway Distributive Plant in Hyattsville to see another business concern in operation.

"Screech," "crash" and similar sounds issued from the auditorium as Eta sponsored "Signal 30," a movie dealing with traffic hazards. The profits from the movie went to the American Field Service.

Eta Hi-Y sponsored two dances, one with Kappa Tri-Hi-Y during the Northern Virginia Basketball Tournament and one during the Easter vacation.

"This will be for A.F.S.," comments Stuart Singer as he and Robert Skinner divide up the profits from the Eta movie.

Guest Lecturers Deliver Speeches on Business

Meeting every first and third Thursday, the Future Business Leaders of America Club listened to many lectures given by guest speakers on subjects related to business. During the winter the club heard speeches on economics, planning a wardrobe on a secretary's salary and what abilities an employer wants in his employees.

In March, at a convention held at Mary Washington College, F.B.L.A. members from all over the state met to discuss the business field. Entertainment and contests of all kinds provided them with the opportunity to get to know each other better. Working in the attendance office filing records and sponsoring a luncheon for the Business teachers at W-L ended the year.

French Club Transforms Theatre into Restaurant

Gay checked tablecloths and candles gave the Little Theater the air of an authentic restaurant for the annual French Club dinner. Speaking only French, students chose entrees from the menu and gave their orders to members of the club who posed as waiters. While students and other guests ate, wandering minstrels sang folk songs, lending the restaurant a more continental atmosphere. Other entertainment for the evening included a rendition of the can-can danced on the stage.

Under the red and white striped awning of a traditional street vendor's cart, members of the French Club sold cream puffs on alternate Tuesdays each month. These sales helped to fill the club's treasury and give W-Lites the opportunity to satisfy their after-school hunger by sampling several varieties of French pastry.

"Another day's sales done," thinks French Club Treasurer Peter Daymont as he puts away the cart after a weekly pastry sale.

FHA Mixer Entertains Student Body, Teachers

Red and white decorated the Little Theater on Valentine Day, February 14, during the open house held by the Future Homemakers of America. The organization invited all students and members of the faculty to attend. Guests enjoyed punch and cookies made for the mixer by club members.

One of five American girls with the opportunity to attend, FHA senior Dee Kimball spent four weeks at the International Home Economics Workshop. The workshop, held during the summer in Dunkerque, France, gave the girls participating a chance to study homemaking methods and meet European girls.

Awarding the Future Homemakers of America club seal for service, President Linda Ayres congratulates Elizabeth Conant.

Future Teachers Survey Local Primary Schools

Simple arithmetic and the "A,B,C's" greeted members of the Future Teachers of America during field trips to several Arlington schools. Observing teachers at work in a typical classroom situation aided club members in making the decision to prepare for a career in education.

Seeking to provide a small book scholarship for one of its members, the club baked brownies, fudge, chocolate cakes and cookies and sold them at a fall bake sale.

"How about this one?" asks Susie Church as she and Bonnie Payne select books to read to children at elementary schools.

Gamma Girls View IceCapades in District

Bundled in their warmest winter clothing, members of Gamma Tri-Hi-Y braved icy streets in the District to attend the 1963 Ice Capades. Colorful scenes from the Broadway hit "Showboat" climaxed the performance, which also included exhibitions of solo, couple and precision skating.

Clad in aprons, Gamma members satisfied their midnight hunger by preparing pizza at the club's winter slumber party. During the month of December, members of the club filled Christmas stockings with candy and small toys for distribution to mentally retarded children. Aiding the Arlington branch of the Young Men's Christian Association in raising funds, Gamma joined in selling mint candies.

Gymnasts Answer President's Fitness Call

President Kennedy's call for a step-up in physical fitness of the country's youth challenged an industrious group of W-Lites this year. The Gymnastics Club met twice a week to practice tumbling and to improve their skills on the different pieces of gymnastic apparatus, including the trampoline, the minor trampoline, the parallel bars, the rope, the side horse and the high bar. Gymnastics Club, starting with only six members at the beginning of this year, increased enrollment to twenty-one students. This club aimed its activities at possible competition in the future as a varsity sport with the other gymnastic squads of Northern Virginia.

Listening to instructions from Mr. Hans Klose, juniors Bonnie Sonen and Susan Seoris mentally picture the stunt.

Senior gymnast Rick Miller demonstrates a handstand on the parallel bars to fellow gym club members.

Club Members Compete In Occupation Contests

Students enrolled in the Diversified Occupations courses at W-L found social activities planned for them through the efforts of the Industrial Co-operative Training Club. The I.C.T. provided its members with several contests and members received the results of the judging at the district convention held at W-L on February 9th. These contests included ones in essays, posters, scrapbooks, the king and queen contest, displays, spelling, talent contest and the student of the year contest. W-L won the scrapbook contest with senior Nanci Clements' entry, "My Job as a Dental Assistant." Students from all over the Northern Virginia district also selected Nanci as the queen of I.C.T.

"Congratulations," says the master of ceremonies to King and Queen Bill Cumberland and Nancy Clements.

Internationalites Arrange Projects, Dinners, Tours

Viewing films of foreign countries at bimonthly meetings provided members of the International Club with an opportunity to learn of the cultures of many countries. Business at the meetings consisted of planning fund-raising projects for the American Field Service, arranging dinners at foreign restaurants in the area and discussing proposed tours of Embassies.

In the spring the members invited a boy and a girl from each of the countries represented locally by the A.F.S. to a party. A skit given by club members and exchangees started off the evening and served to break the ice. Later, members had the opportunity of exchanging observations of foreign life with their guests.

Acting as hosts at the International Center in the District of Columbia afforded members an additional chance of meeting foreign visitors. Guiding them through the halls of Washington-Lee and around the Washington area, the members of the International Club tried to show their guests the everyday life of Americans.

Latin Students Feast on Roman Delicacies

Toga-clad Latin students reclined on pillows to watch wrestling matches at the traditional Roman feast sponsored by the Junior Classical League. Festivities began with a parade and sword fight, and continued with a chariot race. Dinner included eggs, grape juice and apples for dessert.

Roman culture and mythology provided the subject for several skits presented by the members of the club. Simple costumes and settings lent an authentic air to these productions.

Key Club Wins Award For First Nine Weeks

Winning the Club of the Quarter Award for the first nine weeks, the Key Club worked on service projects in their efforts to win the Club of the Year Award at the close of the year. Starting the year off with their annual peanut sale to help underprivileged Arlington children, the officers of the club then proposed a project to clean up the school and improve the appearance of the grounds.

With the festivities of the Thanksgiving season, the Key Club embarked upon their traditional projects of building a float for the Beta bonfire and of selling their "BEAT G.W." signs.

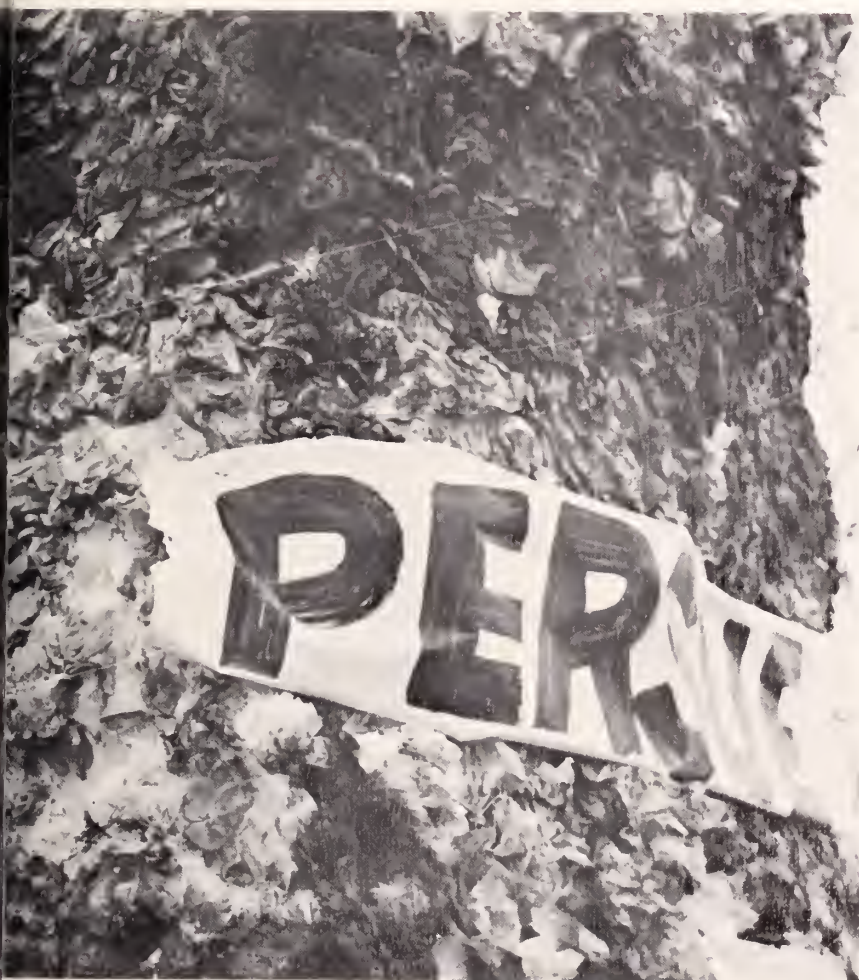

Throughout the year the members met with the men in the Kiwanis Club International for each of their weekly luncheons at Hogate's Restaurant. At the close of the first semester, the club sent a representative to a board meeting of all club presidents and the Club's Lieutenant Governor. In January the members formed a basketball team to enter in the area club competition.

Thursday Pizza Profits Finance Korean Orphans

Keyettes beckoning and the aroma of pizza "American style" lured hungry students to purchase a slice of the Italian dish each Thursday afternoon. The girls used the profits to support an orphan in Korea. These funds provided a doll for a birthday present and a tea set and stuffed dog for Christmas gifts and bought her school books.

Helping the Tuberculosis Association, the service club volunteered to prepare material to send to county residents. After school all of the girls met to fold and enclose letters and pamphlets for mailing. After completing this project, they worked an hour monthly for the T.B. center.

Lambda Members Hunt For 'Perfect' Evergreen

Falling snowflakes and freezing weather found Lambda Hi-Y on their hunt for a beautiful Christmas tree. Each person on the committee had a different idea about the perfect tree for the hallway at the school's main entrance. Someone wanted the tree to be a short, slender pine while another individual chose a tall round cedar. A vote finalized the decision and the boys returned carrying a lofty spruce. Decorating the tree with bright red, blue and green bulbs completed the project.

Popular discs, cokes, and gay chatter set the casual atmosphere at an after-dance following the basketball game with Groveton High School. Sponsored by the group, the dance turned into a victory celebration.

Library of Congress Tour Shows 'Behind Scenes'

Pneumatic tubes, the shipping room and the various displays attracted the attention of the ten Library Club members during a tour of the Library of Congress. The club had a special guided tour in which they had an opportunity to visit places which the average person cannot see, such as the mailing room and the various offices.

During their bi-monthly meetings the library enthusiasts heard speakers which included members of their own club. The members spoke of their various hobbies, one student lectured on his work in acquiring his flying license, another spoke of his science project, which concerned weather.

Typing pockets and cards and pasting pockets occupied the library assistant in the workroom. The other four posts where the library assistants spent their time working during their study hall and before and after school included the circulation desk, shelving, attendance and periodicals.

Ten Rehearse Routines During Football Season

"Ready . . and . . one . . two . . three . . four" began the captain of the majorettes, as she led the squad at one of the evening practices. During the football season the ten girls held practice sessions on the athletic field and in the gymnasium three or four times a week. Music from a record player accompanied most of the practice sessions.

Last year's squad selected several sophomores for this season's team at tryouts held at various junior high schools last spring. Juniors and seniors had an opportunity to tryout in the spring or early in the fall. Shortly after the tryouts, the squad began practicing this year's routine.

Majorette activities for this year featured three of their major routines: marching, twirling and dancing, at eight of Washington-Lee's ten football games during the fall.

Members Paint Walls; Hang Mirrors, Curtains

Nu Tri-Hi-Y girls painted, sewed and hammered as they added a touch of color to the walls, hung curtains, added mirrors and put a flowerbox in the window as they carried out their year's project, fixing up the girls' room on the second floor.

At Christmastime the Nu-girls collected food for a basket which they presented to an underprivileged family in Arlington. Other Yuletide activities included singing Christmas carols at the Hermitage, an old folks home in Alexandria.

As spring approached the girls added cupid's touch to the teachers' cafeteria as they made center pieces for the tables. Red construction paper, styro-foam and gum drops added up to a colorful Valentine touch. The girls also added a touch of ingenuity to the trays of patients at the Arlington Hospitals as they made favors for the patients.

Adding a touch of color to the waste paper basket, Sue Harmon and Kathy Weaver begin the Nu project.

Riding Enthusiasts Plan Traditional Horse Show

Constructing jumps and renting the show ring at the Bar J riding stable, members of the Mounted Generals planned their annual horse show. At the show, guests from all over Northern Virginia saw contestants compete in many events to demonstrate their riding skill. Judging and the presentation of trophies and ribbons climaxed the show.

Throughout the year, excursions to the Bar J stables allowed club members to practice jumping and to generally improve their ability to handle a horse. Other activities included a hayride in a horse-drawn wagon and a picnic.

Omega Donates Funds From Sales to CARE

In its third year of organization as a club, Omega Hi-Y sponsored several major dances and donated funds to charities. As a fund-raising project, Omega members sold cokes and popcorn at home basketball games. The club donated a portion of the proceeds from the sales to CARE, and deposited the remainder in their treasury.

During the Christmas holidays Omega sponsored a dance at the YMCA recreation center. The dance featured the "Arousers," who entertained the one-hundred invited guests. Omega also sponsored the traditional Charity Ball in February, donating the proceeds to the American Field Service.

Locker Room Receives Repairs from Phi Hi-Y

Sounds of clanging metal came from the boys' locker room as the Phi-Hi-Y members enlisted the aid of hammers, screwdrivers, pliers, nails and screws in their effort to carry out their school project, fixing up the boys' locker room.

Phi-Hi-Y began the year by planning a dance with Tau-Tri-Hi-Y after the football game against Yorktown. The club soon followed this by joining with Gamma Tri-Hi-Y in sponsoring a dance following an encounter with roundballers from O'Connell.

During their second year as a club, the fifteen members served the school by assisting with the alumni tea the day before the Christmas vacation. The boys set up chairs and tables and helped serve the tea and cookies during first period. The club also demonstrated its Yuletide spirit by collecting food for a Christmas basket.

Pep Club Encourages Team With Cheers

"Two bits, four bits, six bits, a dollar," yelled a hundred and ten sport enthusiasts while practicing cheers prior to an important football game. Sitting in reserved seats on the fifty-yard line, members supported the cheerleaders.

Paint brushes in hand and snappy slogans before them, Pep Club members created original posters for display in the halls. One inspired group piled up section upon section of circular shaped cardboard and painted Indian designs on the figure to make a life-size totem pole to arouse interest in the game with the Wakefield Warriors.

"What would Generals be without the 'E'?" laughs Karen Clingenpeel as she cuts letters for the club's placard cheers.

"We've got them for sure," Margi Mintz assures Pep Club President Sue Bradford as they put up posters.

Generating enthusiasm seems to be a big job for Carol Humphries and Pat Weldon as they plan projects for the club.

Psychology Enthusiasts Hear Diverse Speakers

"Where were you on the night of November 10th?" asked one of the speakers to a member of the Psychology Club. The lecturer with the lie detector began a series of speakers and movies sponsored by the Psychology Club. Among other guests, the Club had speakers on mental illnesses, alcoholism, narcotics and a representative from the walk-in clinic in the District of Columbia. The movies included "The Three Faces of Eve" and one about Americans brainwashed in Korean War Camps.

"My personality is blue", "I am red" and similar comments could be heard from Psychology Club members after they took a color test which determined their personality. To find out the classification of their personality, the students answered questions concerning their interests, likes and dislikes by checking off one of four colors.

Squad Members Guide W-Lites During Practices

At the beginning of the school year, Rescue Squad members placed Civil Defense and fire drill signs in every classroom of the school. When the administration scheduled drills, members took special stations throughout the school.

At every home basketball and football game, and at all of the home wrestling matches, Rescue Squad members could be found on emergency duty.

In order to handle all of these tasks and to keep up to date on latest techniques, many of the members took a special first aid course given by the Clarendon Fire Station. In competition against other schools, members tested their speed and efficiency in first aid on a "dummy" patient.

Demonstrating latest first aid techniques, Ron Capone and Bill Getchell aid stricken patient John Unmack.

Group, University Meet For Russian Gatherings

Composed of members of the Russian I and II classes and other interested students, the Russian Club coordinated its activities with those of the Russian Club at George Washington University. Together, the two clubs listened to several Russian speakers, saw movies, and held parties.

George Washington's professor delivered several talks to the two clubs. A native Russian and well qualified to speak on the Soviet Union, she spoke on the Russian culture and people. The Club also heard other prominent speakers.

Club members saw several movies, some on Russian culture, and others presented in the native language. One of these told the story of a century-old Russian fable in cartoon form. At several of the parties, members wore Russian costumes and danced native Russian dances.

Museum Tour Features View of Working Heart

Touring the chambers of a pulsating model of the human heart, Science Club members completed a visit to the Franklin museum. At the museum, students also explored the observatory and ship room, and watched a demonstration on the manufacture of paper. Continuing their field trip, club members went to the Academy of Sciences. Before viewing the exhibits, W-Lites saw movies which explained the techniques used in the preparation of displays.

Life in Antarctica, rubber and Geology provided the subject for discussion in various club meetings during the year. Guest speakers stimulated interest by illustrating their talks with movies and demonstrations, and by furnishing expert answers to students' questions.

Sigma Treats Children to Movie, Popcorn

"Dues must be paid on time," insists treasurer Linda McGavin as she accepts money from G.G. Gibson.

Sitting on the edge of their seats, children from Junior Village between the ages of five and twelve anxiously awaited the climax of a movie and their bag of popcorn. Sigma Tri-Hi-Y members, who sponsored the trip, soon arrived with the bags of popcorn. The Tri-Hi-Y took one of the Junior Village cottages to see "Son of Flubber" at a theater in downtown Washington.

After a home football game with Hammond, Sigma sponsored an Open House with Alpha Tri-Hi-Y in the gymnasium. The dance, celebrating another victory for Washington-Lee, allowed all football players to enter free.

Several bake sales throughout the year and finances from the Open House helped initiate another club project. A special drive for the Voice of America in March covered nearly all of the Washington-Lee area. In addition to going from house to house for contributions, Sigma members also visited various businesses in the area.

Club Members Observe Spanish Yule Customs

Christmas carols in Spanish and festive dress set the mood for a Spanish Club Christmas party. Following closely the customs of Spain, students broke the traditional piñatas with a palo stick. The other club members, who had formed a circle, scrambled for the candies, miniature figurines and plastic toys. Following the festivities, the club observed the religious ceremonies of the holiday and attended Midnight Mass at a nearby church.

After watching Flamenco dancers and listening to Flamenco music, the club members attempted to do the Spanish dance at one of the meetings. Discussing the lack of authenticity in their form, the club decided to go to see real Flamenco dancers at a District restaurant where they also enjoyed a Spanish dinner.

Spanish Club member Bill Egan draws a colorful poster to advertise a field trip to a Spanish restaurant in the district.

Aquatic Club Practices Yield Swimmers' Victory

Boasting two Scholastic All-American swimmers and the top woman freestyle swimmer in the country, the Swim Club held sessions once every Thursday at the Northern Virginia Aquatic Club. Andy Grinstead and Chris Johnson made Scholastic All-American, while Robyn Johnson became the Woman's National high point champion, in addition to holding several American freestyle records.

With expert supervision by Mr. Stan Tinkham, a former Olympic coach and the present coach for the Pan American Games, members had an opportunity to improve their swimming techniques.

Tau Open House Funds Support Cuban Refugee

In its first year of operation, Tau Tri-Hi-Y established itself as an active and useful organization. The activities of the club ranged from charitable services to social gatherings. Once a month, various members of the club visited homes for the aged and St. Elizabeth's Mental Hospital.

In cooperation with a neighboring church, Tau helped to sponsor a family of Cuban refugees. The project included the transportation of the family from Florida to Arlington, procuring a house for the family, and obtaining work for the father. At Thanksgiving and at Christmas the club assembled food baskets and donated linen to the family.

Monthly dues, the sale of candy, and receipts from open houses provided Tau with suitable funds. The club sponsored two open houses after basketball games, one of which featured a band.

At one of the early meetings, Sylvia Sledge, Marge Carroll and Ann Clevinger vote in the club elections.

Theta Members Unravel Wool to Knit Sweaters

Struggling with the problems of tangled yarn and dropped stitches, Theta Tri-Hi-Y members practice knitting at several of their winter meetings. After learning the basic techniques, club members made sweaters and other clothing and distributed these articles to various child care institutions in the Washington area.

Using construction paper and ingenuity, Theta members designed tray favors at one of their regular Thursday meetings. On Washington's Birthday they delivered the miniature cherry trees to Arlington Hospital. During the Christmas season, the club members aided the Tuberculosis Association by selling lace doilies, cloth-covered hangers, place mats and T.B. seals.

W-Lites Repair Toys for Junior Village

Sounds of sawing, hammering and tapping echoed down the halls of Junior Village as the boys from the Vocational Office Training Club made and repaired toys for the boys and girls there. Girls from the club carried out their annual service project by entertaining the children in the nursery.

In the springtime the office trainees hosted a banquet in honor of their employers. Several of the guests spoke on various commercial vocations such as typing, stenography and mechanics. Following the annual dinner the Madrigals entertained the students and their guests with various songs.

At their bi-monthly meetings, the members of the Vocational Office Training Club asked various employers and employees of local companies and offices to speak of opportunities for employment in Arlington. On different occasions the trainees also invited professional men from the district.

Club Members Guide Bewildered Visitors

Ability with a foreign language, a smile and a firm handshake constituted the only requirements for membership in the Welcome Club. As the name implies, this organization had the responsibility of welcoming incoming students to Washington-Lee, making these persons feel at home and serving as guides to all visitors to the school.

Much of the club's activity took place near the end of vacation when summer arrivals to Arlington became acquainted with school customs and activities. The organization aided these transfers by escorting them through the school, holding social gatherings and making personal calls. Each student arriving throughout the year received similar introductions and welcomes to Washington-Lee.

During Back-to-School Night, confused parents accepted the services of club members in finding rooms hidden in remote niches of the building and in deciphering illegible schedules.

"Signs are helpful," comments Bob Wells as he and Paul Hildebrand discuss ways to improve the club's effectiveness.

Organization Requires Clubs' Service Programs

In order to co-ordinate the activities of the various hi-y's and tri-hi-y's at Washington-Lee, two representatives from each of the Y-Clubs met to discuss and plan activities. The body constituted an advisory group for the Hi-Y Club program. This organization, the Y-Council, attempted to regulate the efforts of those groups sponsored by the Young Men's Christian Association, in order to "obtain maximum benefit for the separate participants, for the school and for the surrounding community."

During holidays and special occasions throughout the year, the member clubs of the Hi-Y program, in co-operation with the Y-Council, sponsored open houses. These social events furnished funds necessary to carry out charitable activities. A part of this community service program included co-operation with local charitable organizations in order to provide needed social and welfare work.

Varsity Gridders Take Area Championship

Lynn Moore
Co-Captain

Winning the Northern Virginia crown, the 1962 varsity football team came from a ranking of fifth in the area to hold top slated George Washington in the annual Turkey Day game. After taking the first game of the season from the Fairfax Rebels, the squad dropped their second contest to Roanoke's Patrick Henry 7-10. The varsity grid-ders bounced back to defeat the Lee Lancers 20-7.

Avenging last year's loss, the Generals defeated the Patriots in a game in which the sparkling defense came into its own and held Yorktown to little yardage. The triumphant Generals went on to beat O'Connell, Hammond, J.E.B. Stuart and Annandale. The Quincy eleven won their next game from Wakefield 7-0 to clinch the title.

Eight wins—One loss—One tie

Mud, harsh November winds, and conventional hard-nosed football characterized the 1962 Thanksgiving Day game played at Washington-Lee's War Memorial Stadium. Meeting on a field caked with mud, the two strong defensive teams battled to a scoreless tie with both teams making one drive into the opposition's territory. Depending on John Girtman, quarterback Lynn Moore called a game of end runs, line crashes, and short passes.

George Washington gave the Generals their one opportunity to score with a fumble on the fifteen yard line. Moving the ball six yards, the Quincy eleven then attempted a field goal which was off to the left. The strong defense took over to hold the Presidents to a total of eighty yards.

Eluding Fairfax blockers, Ben Smith, linebacker, smashes into a Rebel back to stop a touchdown run.

Generals Grant Boice and Clay Day hit Yorktown half-back John Cooke as he tries to hand-off to Jerry Paffle.

Jay Vee Gridders Enter 6 to 2 Winning Record

Closing their season with a close 20-19 win over arch rival Wakefield, the Jay Vee posted a winning season of six victories and only two losses. Beating George Washington by a score of 26-8 in their initial contest, the little gridders then went on to shutout Yorktown 7-0. O'Connell fell next to Washington-Lee in a game highlighted by an eighty-five yard kickoff runback.

Dropping their next encounter with Hammond by only one point, the little Generals then came back to defeat Marshall 6-7 and blank Osbourn 14-0 in a defensive game. The little cleatfeet lost to Episcopal and beat Wakefield to finish the season.

Harriers Take Virginia State Championship

Sweeping all state honors, the 1962 varsity cross country team completed their winning season at the state meet in Williamsburg. Getting a good start by sweeping the Wakefield Invitational, the roadrunners then traveled south to the A.A.U meet at William and Mary. Taking first place by only .2 seconds, harrier Steven Lyon led his teammates to victory over the state's toughest competition.

Coached by Mr. Allison Wells, Washington-Lee next gained victory in the Northern Virginia meet at Episcopal where they placed four of the first five men in a field of one-hundred. Varsity runners Steve Lyon, Terry Donnelly, Rob Elkins, and Bob Sjogren took first, second, fourth and fifth places.

Rounding the final turn of the track, varsity harrier Steve Lyon outkicks his opposition to take first.

Varsity Compiles District's Longest Streak

Compiling the area's longest winning streak, the 1962-63 Varsity Basketball Team won 33 consecutive games over a two season span before entering the tournament circuit. The Generals, rated best in the area by the Washington Star, dominated the season's play with an undefeated record.

Sparked by five seniors, the cagers presented the toughest defensive squad in the league with a grueling man-to-man defense providing the basis of their attack. With Jim Hawley and Stan Brock furnishing the speed and shooting accuracy from the outside and Lynn Moore, Mark Mengerling and Ed Hummer supplying the height and control of the boards, the Generals held their opponents to their lowest scores in games throughout the season.

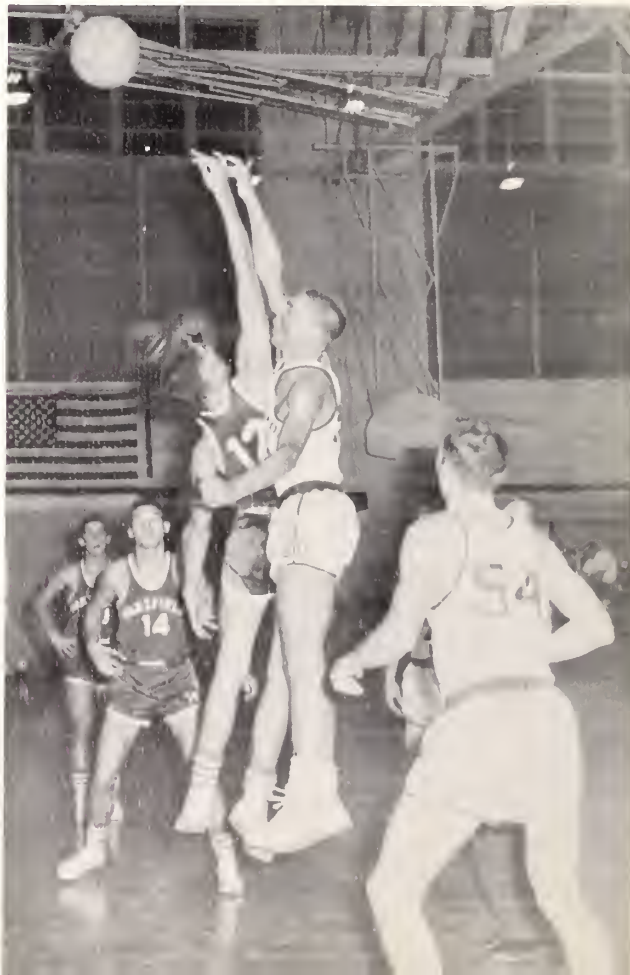

With their offense working around a multitude of basic plays engineered by coach Levin and carried out through co-captains Jim Hawley and Ed Hummer, the Generals varied their attacks to snap the opponents' defense. After getting off to their usual slow start, the Generals rallied to beat second place Groveton 60-30 and third slot Annandale 60-48 before capacity crowds.

Taking the ball down court, Ed Hummer exchanges quick signals for the developing play with Jim Hawley.

Hoopsters Take Second Consecutive State Title

Successfully defending their Group IA State Title, the 1962-63 Varsity Basketball Team romped into the finals of the state tournament at the University of Richmond and, with fine defensive efforts by the whole team and stunning offensive play by All-American Ed Hummer, beat Douglas Freeman of Richmond 44-41 in the final contest.

Walking by Andrew Lewis in the opener 57-29, the Generals then took on Newport News and Chris Ellis and held them scoreless from the floor during the first half to win 49-41. The Quincy Five then beat Freeman in the finals and extended their winning streak to 39 games over a two season span.

Junior Larry Kener lays the ball up on the back-board after he gets away for a fast break against Yorktown.

Sophomores Cagers Reach Tourney Finals

Compiling a season total of twelve and eight, the Junior Varsity Basketball team came from their opening deficit of four losses to win nine consecutive games and reach the finals in the Northern Virginia Tournament. Beating Groveton 43-41 in a close semi-final game, the Little Generals dropped the final game to a strong George Washington team.

Avenging an early season loss, the Little Generals came back to beat arch-rival Wakefield 45-41 in one of the season's closest games.

Sharpshooting their way to their third consecutive Northern Virginia Championship, the Varsity Riflemen slated an overall record of 8-1 for the year. With captain Rick Hawthorne as high point man for the Generals, the squad beat the shooters from Wakefield twice during the season to compile a 7-0 record in the Northern Virginia league.

Firing in their range under the shop building, the boys put in long hours of practice which included regular afternoon and Saturday workouts.

Taking careful aim, captain Rick Hawthorne practices on the rifle range before the final Wakefield match.

Cavallo Rebuilds Squad With Winning Season

Under the direction of first-year coach Guy Cavallo, the Varsity Wrestlers registered a 9-2-2 record before going into the two post-season tournaments. Boasting two undefeated grapplers, co-captains Geoff Lipsey with a 10-0 record and Cameron Stuart with a 5-0 record, the matmen finished second in the Northern Virginia tournament and tied for fifth place in the state behind three northern Virginia squads.

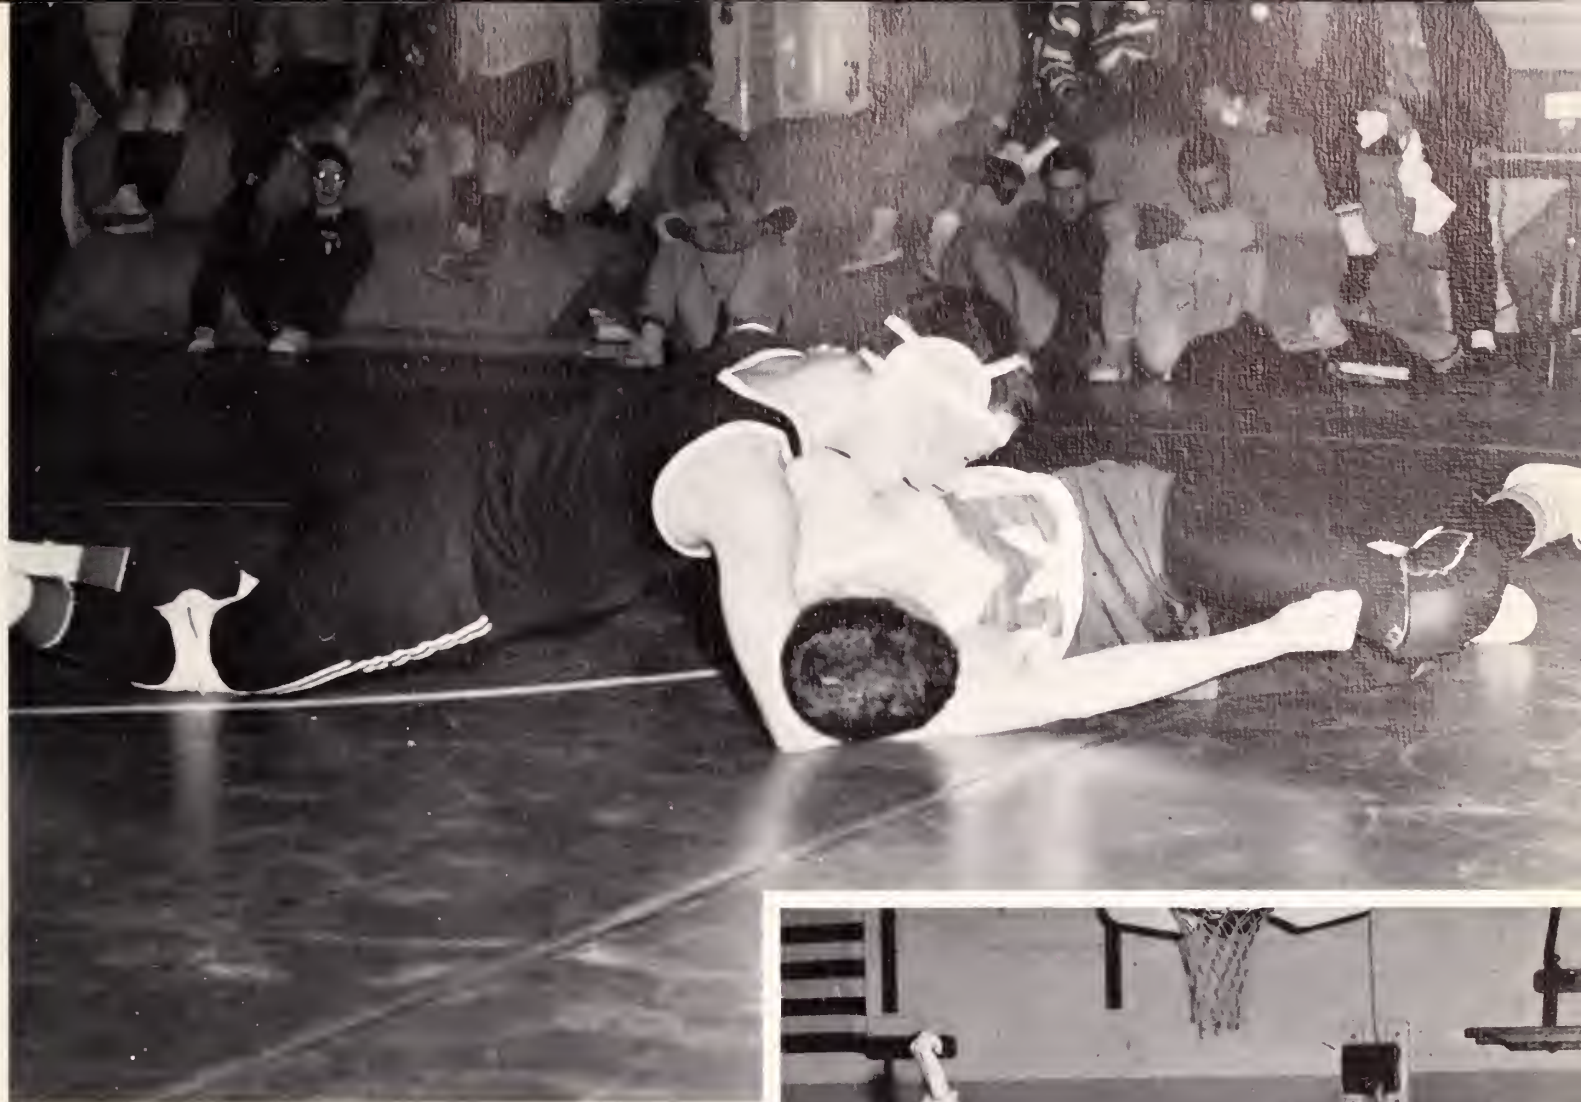

Basing his attack on rebuilding the team following the loss of several seniors, Coach Cavallo varied the boys wrestling in each weight and led a strong "B-squad" to a 3-3 record. With budding grapplers with little experience providing the material for rebuilding, the rookie mentor carried a roster of seventeen boys for twelve positions on the squad. This psychology proved successful for the Generals as they beat both close rival Yorktown and Northern Virginia Champion Wakefield in a tri-meet.

Indoor Trackmen Sweep To State Championship

Sweeping past defending state champions Newport News and Northern Virginia entrant Hammond, the indoor track team took the state championship with an impressive 31 points. Led by Co-Captains Rob Elkins and Bill Hiatt, the thin-clads won three first place honors and three second places in the meet. Copping first place in the mile run, Steve Lyon finished the stretch in 4:40.6 with teammate Bob Sjogren placing fifth in the same race.

Co-Captain Rob Elkins won the gruelling 440 yard race with a :53.4 time, only .2 second off the state record. Senior Greg Wheeler put on his best performance, winning the broad jump with his 21'3" leap, a foot better than his previous record.

Broken records. Wakefield Invitational honors and Northern Virginia laurels acclaimed the successful season attained by the 1962 trackmen. Led by Co-Captains Duncan Higgins and James Barnett, the Generals paced themselves victoriously through the regular season to break six school records.

Defeating George Washington 63-50 and taking the Northern Virginia Meet on May 12, the trackmen earned their trip down state. At William and Mary, Duncan Higgins carried the squad to a fifth place spot in the meet with his 1:57.4 in the 800 yard run while Steve Lyon placed second in the mile.

"Six, seven, eight," thinks junior crewman Duke Hill as he does his daily workout of pull-ups before rowing.

Bringing national prominence to Washington-Lee, the 1962 Crew took the Statesbury Cup Regatta, the National Schoolboy Rowing Championship and attained the semi-finalist position in the coveted Henley Royal Regatta in England. Coached by Mr. Charlie Butt, the Varsity Eight consisting of Bob Cox, Al Anderson, Bob Cocker, John Bagwell, Brian O'Donnell, Greg Wynn, John Jenkins, Van Waddell, and coxswain Mike Omohondro, stroked through two races on the Thames River before being defeated by the National Provincial Bank crew in the mile and five-sixteenths semi-final race.

Matching oars with two college crews, the Generals dropped races to the Rutgers freshmen and to the Navy plebes. Following up by defeating hometown rivals George Washington and Hammond, the rowers took the Northern Virginia Title.

"Stroke! Take it up to a 36," hoarsely commands senior Jim Brassfield, coxswain of the junior varsity shell, as he urges the eight to pull at a quicker pace during an evening practice match on the Potomac with the varsity oarsmen.

Pushing against the cold Potomac River wind, Greg Wynn, second-year varsity eight man, rowing in the third position of the sixty-five foot shell, strokes through the rowing motions.

"Practice makes perfect," laughs varsity eight oarsman Bob Cocker, as fellow rower Al Suto works out before rowing.

Diamondmen Win Northern Virginia Title

Finishing off the pace for the third consecutive season, the 1962 Varsity Baseball Team snapped back in tournament play to sweep the Northern Virginia title. The Quincy Nine won their first five contests before bowing to Episcopal in one of the season's closest contests.

Completing the season with an equal number of wins and losses, the Generals entered the tournament. The nine then swamped Osbourne 23-4, dropped powerful Stuart and beat G.W. 7-5.

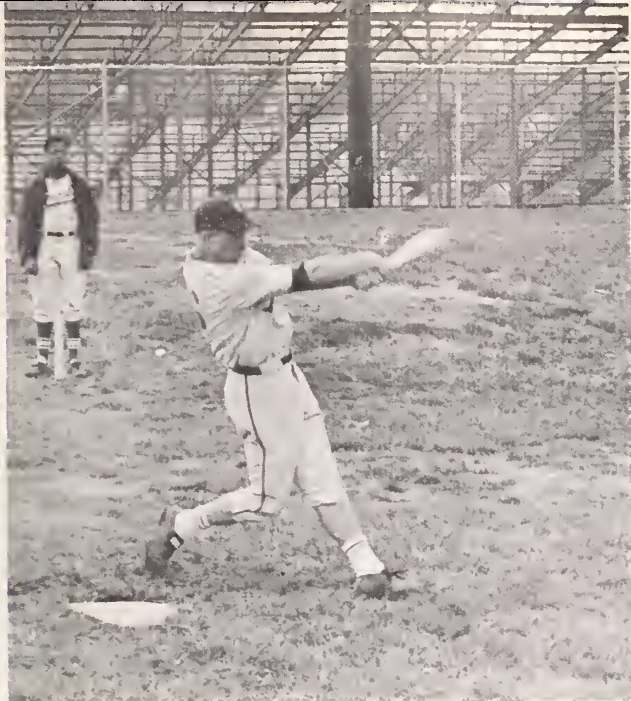

With the follow-through of a pro, Karl Stein throws to batters as Gordon Joy awaits his turn on the mound.

"Crack!" goes the bat as it squarely meets the ball pitched to Skip Bouchard by the pitching machine.

Junior catcher Dean Braley waits for the throw from third as he guards the plate during infield practice.

Stretching to get a wide throw to the bag, first baseman Lynn Moore grabs the bag and tags the base for an easy out.

Quincy Nine Brave Mud, Heat, Rain, Dust

Caught in the act of stealing second base, senior diamondman Geoff Lipsey is tagged out by teammate Stan Brock after a throw from the catcher on a pick-off play.

"We've sure got this one made," thinks diamondman Chuck Sievers as he awaits his turn at bat during an afternoon scrimmage with the Hammond varsity team.

Swinging easily to meet the baseball for a clean hit, junior John Croker takes his swats as junior Dean Braley awaits the ball while taking his turn at catching.

Strong Opening Season Gives Nine 8-7 Record

Coached by Mr. Sal DeGeorgie, the Junior Varsity Baseball Team began their winning season with five consecutive victories over their opponents. The Little Generals found that losses in extra inning games hurt their otherwise strong record of wins throughout the spring season.

Winning their first game of the season over the Patriots of Yorktown by a score of 12-4, the Jay Vee ball club put on a show of strong hitting power.

Sophomore Robert West cocks his bat to meet the oncoming ball as he displays his hitting proficiency.

Racketmen End With Victorious Record

Under the direction of first-year Coach Mr. Fred Pfeiffer and Captain Greg Higgins, the 1962 Varsity Tennis Team successfully pushed the white furpiece past their opponents in their first four court encounters. Beating Groveton and McLean 8-1, the Generals then shut out the Raiders from J. E. B. Stuart and the Fairfax Rebels 9-0.

After dropping their next three matches with Wakefield, Yorktown and Episcopal, the racketmen went on to post a winning season of six and four.

Girls Challenge Parents in Evening Games

Offering the opportunity of playing intramurals to all the girls in the school, the Girls' Athletic Association sponsored a Parent-Daughter Night for parent participation. Each girl came to the evening of games with her parents and participated in numerous activities and team sports in the gym.

In addition, the girls received the chance to go camping if they earned enough points by taking part in the variety of sports offered in the weekly activities after school.

Archery and tennis stopped the slate of intramurals for the spring with the girls playing ping-pong, shuffleboard, badminton and softball to add to the list. Besides the regularly scheduled activity, the girls used the trampoline all year.

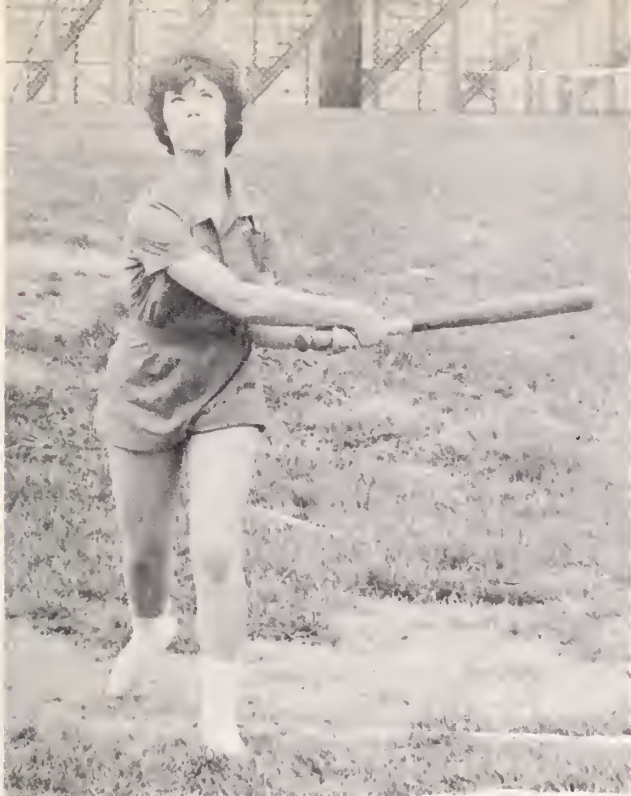

Even Robin Hood's merry men never practiced as diligently as junior G.A.A. girls preparing for an April tournament.

Juniors Martha Reichard and Sally West jump to grab the basketball as Sara Schaub apprehensively awaits the verdict.

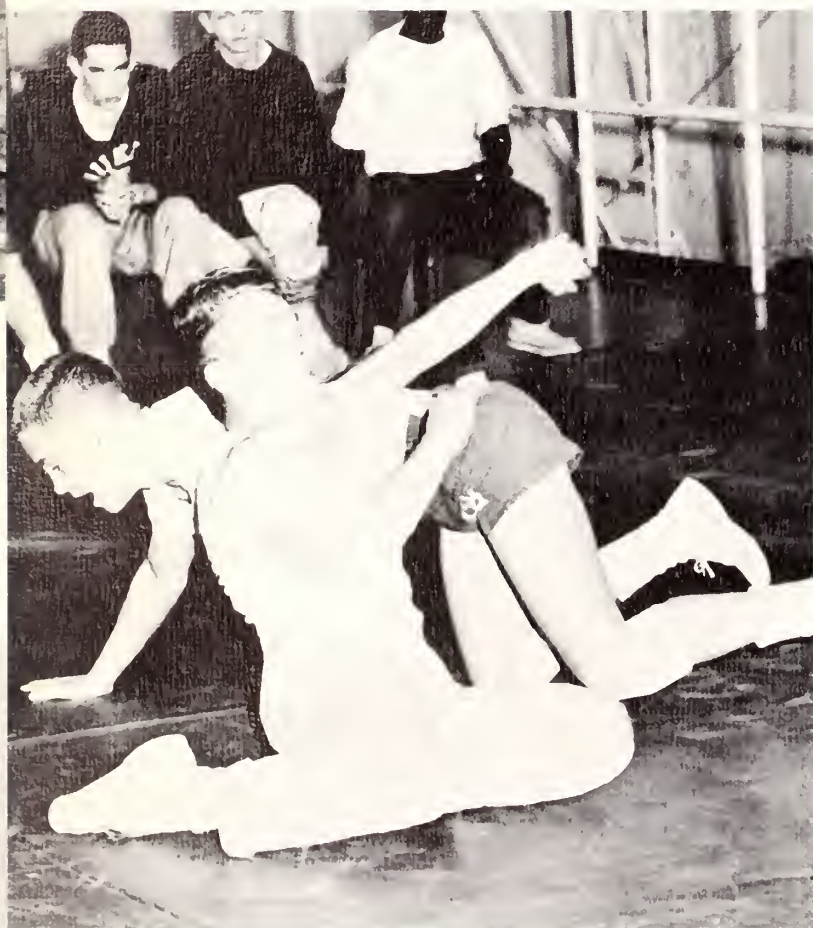

Practicing her serve, sophomore Carrie Fisher prepares for the Girls' Athletic Association afternoon badminton tournament.

Class Rivalries on Grid Highlight Sport Events

Beginning the season with touch football, the boys' intramural program got started with a double elimination tournament. Seniors met to select the captains who picked their teams for the entire season, while the underclassmen played for the teams representing their gym classes. After the individual class champions won their honors, they met the winners of the other classes to decide the school champions.

Following the grid competition, the boys began varied sports such as volleyball, basketball, ping-pong, wrestling, cross-country, foul shooting, and track. In each of these events, the boys on the squads received trophies for winning.

Hoping for a pin, junior grappler Paul Shannon drives junior Alan DeRead backward into a predicament.

Senior Mitch Eschbacher spikes a pass set up by teammate Tron Brekke in their effort to win the senior championship.

Getting ready for the snap from center, junior Dwight Charmichael calls signals in a game of touch football.

Straining to gain possession of the basketball thrown up by senior referee Bill Ingram, Donny Leaman jumps to knock the ball away from senior Bill Boehly and into the waiting grasp of teammate Bill Anderson in an intramural game.

Sparking enthusiasm at school athletic contests, the Varsity Cheerleaders highlighted student cheering with rhythmic shouts learned during the summer. In August, four of the girls traveled to Virginia Beach to attend an assembly where they had the opportunity to learn novel approaches in building up spirit at sports contests.

Not only did the twelve girls devote time to weekly practices, but they made football and basketball identification stickers for the players' lockers, decorated the goal posts for home football games and made posters for the contests.

Council, Class Introduce Code to Underclassmen

Aided by the Student Council, the sophomores participated in a special assembly to present the honor code. A student from Groveton High School told the class of the merits of an honor code at the high school level. A question period followed the presentation of Washington-Lee's code.

In mid-October the class chose their leaders for the year. The sophomores voted during a home-room after having heard the campaign speeches.

Following in the tradition of the sophomore class, the class of '65 planned and presented the annual Easter Assembly for the student body. As part of the project, the class was responsible for the selection of a speaker.

Posters Assist in Effort to Arouse School Spirit

"Split the Atoms," "Pound the Patriots," "Beat Wakefield" and similar slogans adorned the school corridors as the juniors carried out their class project. Each homeroom assisted in the campaign to increase school spirit by making posters.

Enlisting the aid of paint, old coat hangers, paste, string and scotch tape, the class displayed its artistic talents by constructing a float for the Beta parade before the George Washington game.

Flurries of posters, a pep rally, selection of class cheerleaders and players heralded the traditional Junior-Senior encounter. In preparation for their final year at Washington-Lee the juniors planned schedules and selected senior officers.

Sunny Days Draw Upperclassmen Outside

Extended homeroom sessions provided officers with the opportunity to make arrangements necessary for graduation. While secretaries measured students for caps and gowns, treasurers collected class dues which included rental fees.

Attracted by the prospect of studying in an outdoor atmosphere, enthusiastic seniors gathered on the senior court during their study hall. Inclement weather encouraged upperclassmen to complete long-range assignments in the library with the use of permanent passes.

Officers notified class members of tentative plans and the progression of various projects by using a designated bulletin board. Students also used this space for making suggestions in return. Their ideas influenced final decisions concerning the homecoming float, prom theme, and choice of a speaker for the Thanksgiving assembly.

With her minutes completed, class secretary Mary Stedman listens to a discussion of a homeroom presidents' meeting.

Consulting a prospective speaker for the Thanksgiving Assembly, Vice Pres. Mark Mengerling refers to his notes.

Recording the day's receipts, treasurer Diane Babb anticipates one-hundred per cent dues payment from the homerooms.

Student Dies, Was Wearing A Gas Mask

Charles E. B. Lord, 23, a Princeton University graduate student in chemistry from Arlington, was found dead in his dormitory room yesterday with a homemade oxygen mask clamped to his face.

The mask was attached to two tanks, one contained oxygen and the other an unidentified gas.

Police Chief Peter J. McCrohan said the death was listed as accidental until an autopsy is completed. He said no foul play was suspected.

Lord's body was found in the dormitory by a janitor. He was last seen alive Friday afternoon.

Lord's father, Columbus E. Lord of 200 N. Adams st., a retired government architect and engineer, said his son's interests in science first developed at Washington-Lee High School in Arlington. He was valedictorian of his graduating class. He went on to be elected to Phi Beta Kappa at the University of Virginia, where he was graduated with high honors in chemistry in 1967.

Young Lord attended Princeton on a Woodrow Wilson Foundation fellowship and in his second year of study was awarded a National Science Foundation fellowship.

He also is survived by his mother, Vera D. Lord of the home, and a sister, Nancy L. Graves.
